

Banned By RedState.com

In response to an article at RedState.com, I added a comment that defined the terms citizen, natural born citizen, native born citizen, and naturalized citizen. Apparently even that conservative site is afraid to go near Obama's eligibility, as shortly after I posted my comment I was no longer able to access Red State. I now get the message:

601 Database redigestation error

Using a proxy site I will still of course be able to access Red State content, so I don't see the point of their slap on my wrist, but it is worth mentioning that many people are still very much afraid of outing the thug-in-chief. Or perhaps that was the deal made by Red State's Erick Erickson—CNN lets him appear as a guest as long as he avoids discussing Obama's eligibility in any detail?

*Don Fredrick
April 18, 2011*

Note: Here is the "offensive" information in my comment:

"A U.S. citizen is a person subject to the laws of the United States.

A native-born citizen is a person born on U.S. soil.

A natural born citizen is a person born on U.S. soil to two U.S.-citizen parents.

A naturalized citizen is a person born in another country who becomes a U.S. citizen through the naturalization process."