

Barry Failed

by Don Fredrick

(Sung to the tune of Happy Trails)

Barry failed, it's true, it happened once again.
'Til we all turn blue, he'll try, and try again.
Who cares about the fact it cost us trillions,
As long as he controls 300 hundred million.
Barry failed, it's true, and he'll try again.

Some fails are accidents,
Others are planned.
Whether Barry knows which one it is,
Matters little when you're canned.

Barry failed, it's true, it happened once again.
'Til we all turn blue, he'll try, and try again.
Who cares about the fact it cost us trillions,
As long as he controls 300 hundred million.
Barry failed, it's true, and he'll try again.

Some thugs con all the folks,
Others, just some.
But he gets to fail just because
Fifty-one percent were dumb.

Barry failed, it's true, it happened once again.
'Til we all turn blue, he'll try, and try again.
Who cares about the fact it cost us trillions,
As long as he controls 300 hundred million.
Barry failed, it's true, and he'll try again.
