

Choose Wisely

Donald Trump may be a mediocre president, or he may be a great president. Hillary Rodham Clinton, on the other hand, will most definitely be a monumentally terrible president.

Your choice on November 8 is to drink from either Glass A or Glass B. Glass A may contain poison or it may be a magic elixir that keeps you healthy well into your nineties. But Glass B definitely contains poison.

Which glass would you select?

Some will say, “Oh, I’m way too smart to choose Glass B!” yet lack the courage to drink from Glass A. But they do not understand the situation: if you refuse to drink from either glass, the contents of Glass B will be poured down your throat.

Choose wisely, voters.

Don Fredrick

May 7, 2016