BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA('S) LIES TO THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT

"He's a most notable coward, an infinite and endless liar, an hourly promise-breaker, the owner of no one good quality."

William Shakespeare
All's Well That Ends Well 3.6.9-11

Introductory Statement

On May 25, 2011, Barack Hussein Obama, the putative president of the United States of America, gave a speech before the Members of the British Parliament gathered in Westminster Hall, London, England. Echoing the lamestream media in the United States of America, some British media praised the speech. The British Broadcasting Company (BBC) opined, "President Obama does a good line in luxuriant praise."¹ The Guardian announced in its headlines: "Barack Obama bolsters transatlantic relationship in Westminster speech. US president tells parliament that Europe and the US will not be eclipsed by booming eastern economies."² Some other British media sources were not so positive in their reviews. The Telegraph, for example, critiqued that "The pictures were better than the words ... not even the Teleprompters were able to win over the British press."³

The official title of Barack Hussein Obama's speech is Remarks by the President to Parliament in London, United Kingdom. Be it now repeatedly announced that Barack Hussein Obama is always making remarks. Indeed, Barack Hussein Obama's remarks are nothing more than obvious, dull, hackneyed statements expressed with an arrogance of significance. As such they are trite. The literary terminology for such an expression is platitude. This author has noted what he considers to be statements that are platitudes, include a platitude, or are similar to a platitude in Barack Hussein Obama's speech with (P) after the sentence or in the respective portion of the sentence.

The Lie

The title of this commentary essay is as it is because it has two meanings.

1. The verb meaning: Barack Hussein Obama lies to the British Parliament.
2. The noun meaning: The lies are Barack Hussein Obama's lies. He states them personally. He cannot deny them. Barack Hussein Obama has a penchant for ex post facto remarks that he has been misunderstood, misinterpreted, or that the fault lies with others, never with Barack Hussein Obama. Barack Hussein Obama is personally responsible for his words, his actions, and his lies.

The verb lie means "1: to make an untrue statement with the intent to deceive, 2: to create a false or misleading impression."⁴ The word lie is blunt English that imputes dishonesty. The word as a verb came into the English language in the latter part of the 12th century from the Old English lēgan, līgan sometime before 830 from the earlier lēogan before 725. The noun form meaning false statement came into use in the English language also in the latter part of the 12th century as a development from the Old English lygge. Both the verb form and the noun form can be traced back to the Indo-European word root leugh-/lugh-*, meaning to tell a lie and a lie.⁵

The normal evaluation of a person who is telling a lie is not to say that You are a liar, but that You are lying, or You lie. When a person reproduces lies again and again and does not remedy this misbehavior, the only conclusion is that such a person does not just lie sometimes, but that the person is a liar. That person is the result of chronic lying.

This author has followed Barack Hussein Obama since his first appearance on the American political stage when he delivered the keynote address at the Democratic National Convention in Fleet Center, Boston, Massachusetts on July 27, 2004. It too, was studded with historical falsifications and misleading statements. That is when this author knew that Barack Hussein Obama is a compulsive and pathological liar.

⁴ Merriam Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, Tenth Edition, Merriam-Webster, Incorporated, Springfield, Massachusetts: 1993.

⁵ This condensed presentation of the etymology is from Julius Pokorny, Indogermanisches Etymologisches Wörterbuch, A. Francke Verlag, Tübingen und Basel: 2005, entry 686. The asterisk means that etymologists have reconstructed the stem word.

This author's surety of Barack Hussein Obama's lying capabilities was substantiated in many of his speeches after that date. Two significant speeches that achieved world-wide acclaim as great oratory were the Berlin Speech A World That Stands as One, delivered in Berlin, Germany on July 24, 2008, and Barack Hussein Obama's Acceptance Speech at the Democratic National Convention in Denver, Colorado on August 29, 2008. Both of them are filled with false statements, historical inaccuracies, and intentional misleading statements that Barack Hussein Obama orates as if they were true.⁶

Barack Hussein Obama has remained consistent in his lying. His most recent speech before the members of the British Parliament at Westminster Hall is adequate proof because it is infested with lies.

Remarks by the President to Parliament in London, United Kingdom

Westminster Hall, London, United Kingdom

3:47 P.M. BST

1. THE (putative) PRESIDENT: Thank you very much. Thank you. (Applause.)

COMMENT: Applause? This is the first time that the members of the British Parliament have applauded, as the Scots would say, a Hornie,⁷ ... evil incarnate.

2. My Lord Chancellor, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Prime Minister, my lords, and members of the House of Commons:

COMMENT: Barack Hussein Obama now has a Lord Chancellor, and lords. Is it not enough for Mr. and Mrs. Hornie to insult the Queen on both occasions that they have been guests of the United Kingdom: by touching and by mis-toasting? Must Barack Hussein Obama title the members present as belonging to him? As far as this author's knowledge of British royal etiquette goes, the phrasing "My Lord Chancellor" and "My lords" is reserved for the Queen/King only.

3. I have known few greater honors than the opportunity to address the Mother of Parliaments at Westminster Hall. I am told that the last three speakers here have been the Pope, Her Majesty the Queen, and Nelson Mandela -- which is either a very high bar or the beginning of a very funny joke. (Laughter.)

COMMENT: LIE. If this author's memory of British Constitutional Law seminars is correct, (It is!), Barack Hussein Obama is misquoting John Bright (member of the House of Commons from 1843-1889), who in 1865 said that England is the Mother of Parliaments. According to this author's recollection of European History, the true historical existence of the first parliament, the real mother of parliaments, is the Althing (the general assembly) of Iceland. Founded at Thingvellir in 930, it is the oldest continuous parliament in the world.

A very funny joke? Barack Hussein Obama is the joke, a very evil joke.

4. I come here today to reaffirm one of the oldest, one of the strongest alliances the world has ever known. It's long been said that the United States and the United Kingdom share a special relationship. (P) And since we also share an especially active press corps, that relationship is often analyzed and overanalyzed for the slightest hint of stress or strain.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. Again, according to this author's memory of European History facts, the oldest alliance in the world is The Anglo-Portuguese Alliance, (Treaty of Windsor, [England and Portugal], 1386. John I became King of Portugal.) The mutual-pact-of-support portion is still in force. It grew out of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty of 1373 – the oldest active treaty in the world – which provides for "perpetual friendships, unions [and] alliances" between the two sea powers at that time. Concerning any Anglo-American alliance that is one of the oldest alliances in the world, Barack Hussein Obama does not know his history. This author knows of no such alliance before or between WWI and WWII. After WWII there was a Cold War Alliance between Great Britain and the United States of America. The terminology describing the connection between the United States of America and Great Britain as a "special relationship" exists only after WWII.

LIE. Active Press Corps: The United States of America does not have an active press corps. It is more than lamestream. It is completely subservient to George Soros and Barack Hussein Obama.

5. Of course, all relationships have their ups and downs. (P) Admittedly, ours got off on the wrong foot with a small scrape about tea and taxes. (P) (Laughter.) There may also have been some hurt feelings when the White House was set on fire during the War of 1812. (P) (Laughter.) But fortunately, it's been smooth sailing ever since. (P)

COMMENT: What a philosophical statement: "All relationships have their ups and downs." Barack Hussein Obama belittles and insults both American and British history with platitudes and the British sheeple do not even notice. LIE. Those who died on both sides in the American Revolution did not die over a small scrape about tea and taxes. They died because they fought a revolutionary war for being overly taxed on the American side and for the British Monarchy not willing to give the American colonies proper representation in the British Parliament. Saying that "There may also have been some hurt feelings when the White House was set on fire during the War of 1812." is adding insult to injury. Barack Hussein Obama has no concept of the consequences and the facts of history. The British sheeple laugh!

6. The reason for this close friendship doesn't just have to do with our shared history, our shared heritage; our ties of language and culture; or even the strong partnership between our governments. (P) Our relationship is special because of the values and beliefs that have united our people through the ages.

COMMENT: How can a person like Barack Hussein Obama, who has no positive values and beliefs, except for his own narcissistic self, be so impudent and judge what American and British values are?

7. Centuries ago, when kings, emperors, and warlords reigned over much of the world, (P) it was the English who first spelled out the rights and liberties of man in the Magna Carta. It was here, in this very hall, where the rule of law first developed, courts were established, disputes were settled, and citizens came to petition their leaders.

COMMENT: LIE. As far as this author can recollect history, the Ancient philosophers such as Aristotle wrote about citizens' rights: claims to property and the right to participate in public affairs. The English Magna Carta was not a (general) charter of human rights. The Magna Carta consisted of limited political and legal agreements regarding specific, political circumstances. It is only a myth to say that the Magna Carta is a list of human rights and liberties. The modern basis of legal rights and liberties and their being established in print is the document The Twelve Articles (1525), which were part of the peasant demands in the German Peasants' War (1524-1526). (Yes, this author's memory of European History is correct!) The oldest surviving code of laws is The Code of Ur-Nammu, ca. 2100-2050 BC.

8. Over time, the people of this nation waged a long and sometimes bloody struggle to expand and secure their freedom from the crown. Propelled by the ideals of the Enlightenment, they would ultimately forge an English Bill of Rights, and invest the power to govern in an elected parliament that's gathered here today.

COMMENT: LIE. The Age of the Enlightenment is the era in Western philosophy centered in the 18th century. Reason became the primary source of legitimacy and authority as opposed to the divine right concept of monarchies. Although according to the Oxford English Dictionary, the term enlightenment first came into the English language in the middle of the 17th century, its use in the historical sense referring to the French philosophers of the 1770s is due to the translation of the German word and movement known as the Aufklärung. Using the publication of Isaac Newton's Principia Mathematica in 1687 or Britain's Glorious Revolution of 1688 as a starting date is decidedly too early for the establishment of the movement one can call the Enlightenment.

The English Bill of Rights (An Act Declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject and Settling the Succession of the Crown) became part of English law in 1689, before the advent of the 18th century. Barack Hussein Obama is not correct with his dates in history. This is not surprising, since Barack Hussein Obama cannot legally prove where he was born, to say nothing of the circumstances of his birth.

9. What began on this island would inspire millions throughout the continent of Europe and across the world. But perhaps no one drew greater inspiration from these notions of freedom than your rabble-rousing colonists on the other side of the Atlantic. As Winston Churchill said, the "...Magna Carta, the Bill of Rights, Habeas Corpus, trial by jury, and English common law find their most famous expression in the American Declaration of Independence."

COMMENT: LIE. The statement by Winston Churchill is correct. The lie is that Barack Hussein Obama stops at that point. The "...Magna Carta, the Bill of Rights, Habeas Corpus, trial by jury, and English common law" also find expression in the Constitution for the United States of America, particularly in the Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the Constitution, a document that Barack Hussein Obama wants to destroy.⁸ Moreover, the philosophical basis of these important documents and the creed contained in the American Declaration of Independence is Judeo-Christian philosophy.

10. For both of our nations, living up to the ideals enshrined in these founding documents has sometimes been difficult, has always been a work in progress. The path has never been perfect. (P) But through the struggles of slaves and immigrants, women and ethnic minorities, former colonies and persecuted religions, we have learned better than most that the longing for freedom and human dignity is not English or American or Western — it is universal, and it beats in every heart. (P) Perhaps that's why there are few nations that stand firmer, speak louder, and fight harder to defend democratic values around the world than the United States and the United Kingdom.

<http://hubpages.com/hub/Top-7-Marxist-Communist-Policies-Being-Implemented-By-Obama-Today>.

COMMENT: LIE. Is "the longing for freedom and human dignity ... universal," and does it beat in every Islamic and Sharia heart? If the answer is YES, then it cannot be that Islam is Allah-Mohammed-Sharia-cratic, which it is. This author thinks that Barack Hussein Obama is confusing what he considers to be democratic values with true republican values. Barack Hussein Obama's values are socialistic/communistic, which are neither democratic, unless one means mob rule values, nor republican.

11. We are the allies who landed at Omaha and Gold, who sacrificed side by side to free a continent from the march of tyranny, and help prosperity flourish from the ruins of war. (P) And with the founding of NATO -- a British idea -- we joined a transatlantic alliance that has ensured our security for over half a century.

COMMENT: Omaha and Gold are code names of two of the five the beaches of the Allied Landing in Normandy on June 6, 1944. The other three beaches are Utah Beach, Juno Beach, and Sword Beach. Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. NATO was not a singular concept or idea of Great Britain. American, Canadian, and British officials were the source of the concept. They started negotiations in 1949. The North Atlantic Treaty between the United States, Canada, Portugal, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, France, the United Kingdom, and Iceland was signed in Washington, D.C. on April 4, 1949. The predecessor of NATO was the Treaty of Brussels (March 1948) between Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, France, and the United Kingdom. The present author knows of no source that says that the idea of NATO was solely British. If by we Barack Hussein Obama means the United States of America, then the United States of America did not just join a transatlantic alliance, it was a co-founder.

12. Together with our allies, we forged a lasting peace from a cold war. (P) When the Iron Curtain lifted, we expanded our alliance to include the nations of Central and Eastern Europe, and built new bridges to Russia and the former states of the Soviet Union. And when there was strife in the Balkans, we worked together to keep the peace.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. The only bridge to Russia that this author knows is the hypothetical Bering Strait Bridge (It could also be a tunnel or a bridge-tunnel system.) that would span the narrow and shallow Bering Strait between the Russian Chukotka Peninsula and the Alaskan Seward Peninsula. The idea of the bridge connection dates back to the last decade of the nineteenth century. This author does not know what Barack Hussein Obama means with "built new bridges to Russia and the former states of the Soviet Union." Barack Hussein Obama must mean new associations/agreements. What are these new associations or agreements? Does Barack Hussein Obama mean the contents of this: *Rivals, Partners, and Friends: A metaphorical perspective on U.S.-Russian relations after the Cold War?*⁹ If this is meant, it is surely not a bridge! (Perhaps Barack Hussein Obama is a communist construction engineer. Such engineers try to destroy freedom. Barack Hussein Obama surely is a destruction activist when it comes to the Constitution for the United States of America!)

13. Today, after a difficult decade that began with war and ended in recession, our nations have arrived at a pivotal moment once more. (P) A global economy that once stood on the brink of depression is now stable and recovering. (P) After years of conflict, the United States has removed 100,000 troops from Iraq, the United Kingdom has removed its forces, and our combat mission there has ended. In Afghanistan, we've broken the Taliban's momentum and will soon begin a transition to Afghan lead. And nearly 10 years after 9/11, we have disrupted terrorist networks and dealt al Qaeda a huge blow by killing its leader — Osama bin Laden.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. Here is proof that everyone knows something concerning a stable and recovering global economy:

- There are record-high gasoline prices.
- Consumer spending in the United States is slowing down.
- Tight monetary policies curb demand in China.
- After the March 11th earthquake and tsunami, Japan can no longer positively compete in the global economy.
- Europe has a debt crisis that, in addition to Greece and Ireland, has claimed its third victim: Portugal.
- Spain is on the brink of bankruptcy.

LIE. The United States has 46,000 U.S. troops in Iraq. All other nations have withdrawn their troops. On May 12, 2011 the_guradian.co.uk reported that the White House is assuming that Iraq violence will delay United States troop withdrawal. So much for the end of the combat mission! Resistance is being mounted by Moqtada al-Sadr with his efforts to unite Sunnis and Shiites by calling for the total withdrawal of U.S. occupation forces.¹⁰

LIE. The Taliban's momentum has been broken in Afghanistan.?! On May 9, 12, 14, 18, 19, 20, and 25-26, there were brazen Taliban attacks in Afghanistan. After the speech there were continued Taliban attacks on 27, 29, 30 May, and 1, 2 June. Any political novice knows that the Taliban always has a spring offensive lasting into the early summer. Only Barack Hussein Obama in his omnipotent political dumbness knows better! So much for the broken Taliban momentum!

LIE. Terrorist networks have been disrupted. Terrorist networks are still in force. "As long as the Al-Qaida network is still in operation, countries around the world will have to remain vigilant for a long time to come. The US, Britain, France, Japan, South Korea and New Zealand, all issued alerts against possible terrorist attacks and strengthened anti-terror measures soon after the death of bin Laden."¹¹

14. Together, we have met great challenges. (P) But as we enter this new chapter in our shared history, profound challenges stretch before us. (P) In a world where the prosperity of all nations is now inextricably linked, a new era of cooperation is required to ensure the growth and stability of the global economy. (P) As new threats spread across borders and oceans, we must dismantle terrorist networks and stop the spread of nuclear weapons, confront climate change and combat famine and disease. (P) And as a revolution races through the streets of the Middle East and North Africa, the entire world has a stake in the aspirations of a generation that longs to determine its own destiny.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! This is a LIE contradiction of number 13. If "In Afghanistan, we've broken the Taliban's momentum and will soon begin a transition to Afghan lead. And nearly 10 years after 9/11, we have disrupted terrorist networks" there should be no spreading of new threats across borders from these organizations. The determination of the destinies in the Middle East will be eventually in the control of the Muslim Brotherhood.¹² The Muslim Brotherhood will not stop at the borders of Europe.¹³

15. These challenges come at a time when the international order has already been reshaped for a new century. (P) Countries like China, India, and Brazil are growing by leaps and bounds. (P) We should welcome this development, for it has lifted hundreds of millions from poverty around the globe, and created new markets and opportunities for our own nations.

COMMENT: The economies of China, India, and Brazil are growing rapidly. Good for them. However, it is being allowed by Barack Hussein Obama's economic policies. Barack Hussein Obama wants to purchase oil from Brazil instead of allowing for drilling in the United States of America. Barack Hussein Obama is out to kill the drilling and shale programs for energy sources in the United States of America.¹⁴

16. And yet, as this rapid change has taken place, (P) it's become fashionable in some quarters to question whether the rise of these nations will accompany the decline of American and European influence around the world. Perhaps, the argument goes, these nations represent the future, and the time for our leadership has passed.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! Barack Hussein Obama is doing his best to insure that the United States of America will no longer be a world leader.

17. That argument is wrong. The time for our leadership is now. (P) It was the United States and the United Kingdom and our democratic allies that shaped a world in which new nations could emerge and individuals could thrive. And even as more nations take on the responsibilities of global leadership, our alliance will remain indispensable to the goal of a century that is more peaceful, more prosperous and more just. (P)

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. If economic policy activity is any indication of leadership, "The United States continues the decline that began last year 2009-2010, falling two more places to 4th position. The United Kingdom is number 12."¹⁵

18. At a time when threats and challenges require nations to work in concert with one another, we remain the greatest catalysts for global action. (P) In an era defined by the rapid flow of commerce and information, it is our free market tradition, our openness, fortified by our commitment to basic security for our citizens, that offers the best chance of prosperity that is both strong and shared. As millions are still denied their basic human rights because of who they are, or what they believe, or the kind of government that they live under, we are the nations most willing to stand up for the values of tolerance and self-determination that lead to peace and dignity.

COMMENT: LIE. If Barack Hussein Obama is in favor of a free-market system, then there would be no need for ObamaCare. In 2010 "the United States placed eighth in the Index of Economic Freedom" according to a "ranking of nations by market freedom compiled by The Heritage Foundation and The Wall Street Journal. It looks at things such as business freedom, property rights, trade freedom, and government spending. In the top 10, the United States scored better than Chile and Denmark but ranked below Canada, Switzerland, Ireland, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, and Hong Kong. This year, after another year of Obamanomics, the United States dropped to ninth place."¹⁶ Under Barack Hussein Obama's mis-leadership the United States of America has continually declined as a world leader.

19. Now, this doesn't mean we can afford to stand still. (P) The nature of our leadership will need to change with the times. (P) As I said the first time I came to London as President, for the G20 summit, the days are gone when Roosevelt and Churchill could sit in a room and solve the world's problems over a glass of brandy -- although I'm sure that Prime Minister Cameron would agree that some days we could both use a stiff drink. (Laughter.) In this century, our joint leadership will require building new partnerships, adapting to new circumstances, and remaking ourselves to meet the demands of a new era. (P)

COMMENT: Barack Hussein Obama would never drink brandy. Barack Hussein Obama is a Muslim and Muslims do not drink alcohol! Yet, Barack Hussein Obama would like a stiff drink with Prime Minister Cameron. O, how the parliamentary sheeple like that quip. Barack Hussein Obama needs a stiff Hawaiian punch! LIE. Barack Hussein Obama is reported to have said that "The British never do anything for the common good." Barack Hussein Obama will not build new partnerships with a country that he resents.¹⁷

20. That begins with our economic leadership. (P)

COMMENT: See COMMENT at paragraphs 17, 18.

¹⁷ <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-1287828/Revealed-Why-President-Obama-loathes-British.html#ixzz1NqJUpFRP> and the quotation.

21. Adam Smith's central insight remains true today: There is no greater generator of wealth and innovation than a system of free enterprise that unleashes the full potential of individual men and women. That's what led to the Industrial Revolution that began in the factories of Manchester. That is what led to the dawn of the Information Age that arose from the office parks of Silicon Valley. That's why countries like China, India and Brazil are growing so rapidly -- because in fits and starts, (P) they are moving toward market-based principles that the United States and the United Kingdom have always embraced.

COMMENT: LIE. Barack Hussein Obama praises Adam Smith because he wants the British to believe that he is pro-Adam Smith. Adam Smith maintained that people generate wealth and innovation because of healthy self-interest. Adam Smith in The Wealth of Nations (1776) explained how the free market has an invisible hand that promotes the general welfare as a side product of people and entrepreneurs satisfying their own wants. "(B)y his own record of speeches and writing over the last three decades and by his own actions after one year in the White House, (Barack Hussein Obama is) a man who places socialistic, collective values over self-interest."¹⁸ LIE. The United Kingdom did not always embrace market-based principles. Great Britain is not a free-market economy. It is at best social democratic. The socialists in the United Kingdom are the Labour Party. The Labour governments in the history of the United Kingdom are:

1923 Hung parliament (Labour minority government)

1929 Hung parliament (Labour minority government)

1945 Labour victory

1950 Labour victory

1964 Labour victory

1966 Labour victory

1974 (February) Hung parliament (Labour minority government)

1974 (October) Labour victory

1997 Labour victory

2001 Labour victory

2005 Labour victory

2010 The present government is a Hung parliament (Conservative/Liberal Democrat coalition)¹⁹ The Labor Party has not always been pro-free-market economy. Only in recent years has the Labour Party been free market oriented.²⁰

22. In other words, we live in a global economy that is largely of our own making. (P) And today, the competition for the best jobs and industries favors countries that are free-thinking and forward-looking; countries with the most creative and innovative and entrepreneurial citizens.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. This is the anti-logic behind Barack Hussein Obama's policies that the government must be in control of everything. "Obama believes in government control as in a dictatorship of which he is the Top Zsar! America with a democracy is unacceptable to him and he has very little time to accomplish it before the nation really wakes up."²¹

23. That gives nations like the United States and the United Kingdom an inherent advantage. For from Newton and Darwin to Edison and Einstein, from Alan Turing to Steve Jobs, we have led the world in our commitment to science and cutting-edge research, (P) the discovery of new medicines and technologies. We educate our citizens and train our workers in the best colleges and universities on Earth. But to maintain this advantage in a world that's more competitive than ever, (P) we will have to redouble our investments in science and engineering, and renew our national commitments to educating our workforces.

COMMENT: "But to maintain this advantage in a world that's more competitive than ever, we will have to redouble our investments in science and engineering, and renew our national commitments to educating our workforces." is the socialist/communist approach. This is another LIE. The private, free-market education prospects are more productive than those that are run and controlled by the state. Barack Hussein Obama does not want private for-profit colleges, professional schools, trade schools, or just schools to be competitive with those under government controls. That is why he wants school children to spend more of their time in being a part of state-controlled indoctrination courses.²² This attitude applies to for-profit professional schools, colleges, and trade schools.²³ This type of educational policy would lead to statist-controlled consciences.²⁴

24. We've also been reminded in the last few years that markets can sometimes fail. (P) In the last century, both our nations put in place regulatory frameworks to deal with such market failures -- safeguards to protect the banking system after the Great Depression, for example; regulations that were established to prevent the pollution of our air and water during the 1970s.

COMMENT: LIE. Barack Hussein Obama equates British regulatory frameworks with those in the United States. Barack Hussein Obama insinuates that since the United States of America and the United Kingdom have done this, in his opinion together, there is a precedent for the international control and regulation of air pollution and water pollution via cap and trade laws. This is illogical. The British have their own, independent systems and they are much older than those of the United States of America. For example, the United Kingdom's Better Regulation Commission has been advising the British government since January 1, 2006. Much of its advice is concentrated on liberalizing the markets and letting the markets control themselves via competition. British control of air pollution dates back to court decisions in 1611.²⁵ British attempts at water pollution control were first legalized in 1876 in the River Pollution Control Law.²⁶

25. But in today's economy, such threats of market failure can no longer be contained within the borders of any one country. Market failures can go global, and go viral, and demand international responses. (P)

that he is, Barack Hussein Obama would no doubt want the same for the United Kingdom. Barack Hussein Obama has insulted the United Kingdom as often as he can.²⁹ So goes the special relationship. The next step will be to say something about international cap and trade laws.³⁰ These laws and regulations could cost the taxpayer at least 1,761 dollars and more per year.³¹ The taxpayer pays for the scam and Barack Hussein Obama, Al Gore, and George Soros cash in on the profits.³²

26. A financial crisis that began on Wall Street infected nearly every continent, which is why we must keep working through forums like the G20 to put in place global rules of the road to prevent future excesses and abuse. No country can hide from the dangers of carbon pollution, which is why we must build on what was achieved at Copenhagen and Cancun to leave our children a planet that is safer and cleaner. (P)

COMMENT: LIE. The true roots of the financial crisis are found in President James Earl Carter's administration and his policy to provide everyone with the ownership of a home, whether they could afford it or not. As stated above, here is the overture to the implementation of international cap and trade laws. LIE. A large number of scientific studies point to the possibilities that CO2 emissions are more positive for the environment than negative.³³ Arguments that CO2 pollution is dangerous are no more than hypothetical. Barack Hussein Obama's strategy is to have more countries in the world be in on the CO2 scam so that convincing Americans to partake of cap and trade (scam) will be easier, or that his dictatorial establishment of cap and trade in the United States of America will make him personally the savior of the world ... and one of the world's richest men!

27. Moreover, even when the free market works as it should, both our countries recognize that no matter how responsibly we live in our lives, hard times or bad luck, (P) a crippling illness or a layoff may strike any one of us. And so part of our common tradition has expressed itself in a conviction that every citizen deserves a basic measure of security — health care if you get sick, unemployment insurance if you lose your job, a dignified retirement after a lifetime of hard work. (P) That commitment to our citizens has also been the reason for our leadership in the world.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. A "conviction that every citizen deserves a basic measure of security — health care if you get sick, unemployment insurance if you lose your job, a dignified retirement after a lifetime of hard work" are not the reasons for becoming a world leader. The real reason for all countries is to exercise political power regarding their respective ideology. Muslims do not want to become a world power because of their convictions for the common person. It is because they want to institute their ideology, Islam, and gain control of individuals. The same is true for socialism/communism and fascism. The fact that people remain free under republican democracy is anathema to dictatorial ideologies. Indeed, Barack Hussein Obama has learned from one of the most evil despots in the world: Adolf Hitler. Barack Hussein Obama is the most evil leader to the masses. His principles, like Hitler's are:

1. Conviction: Always state your goals with conviction. It does not matter if what you say is a lie. A lie stated with a conviction will ultimately become believed to be a truth. It does not matter if it is true. If said with enough conviction it will be accepted as being true.
2. Repetition: Keep stating the message until it becomes law.
3. Keep ahead of the sheeple: The sheeple will say what they want. Give the sheeple some of what they want, but not all of it at once. Keep ahead of the mood of the sheeple. The sheeple will then think you are a leader.

Barack Hussein Obama keeps these three principles within a framework of propaganda that is supported by the social media. The social media is not concerned with reporting the truth. It is concerned with the seeing-no-evil-hearing-no-evil-saying-no-evil support of The One.

28. And now, having come through a terrible recession, our challenge is to meet these obligations while ensuring that we're not consuming -- and hence consumed with - - a level of debt that could sap the strength and vitality of our economies. And that will require difficult choices and it will require different paths for both of our countries. (P) But we have faced such challenges before, and have always been able to balance the need for fiscal responsibility with the responsibilities we have to one another.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. Fiscal responsibility is not Barack Hussein Obama's 1.4-plus trillion-dollar debt. It is only peanuts to Barack

Hussein Obama. After all, Ben Bernanke can always print more money. Great Britain's net national debt is 3,723.7 billion dollars, quite healthy in comparison to 1.4-plus trillion dollars; yet neither national debt shows real fiscal responsibility.³⁴

29. And I believe we can do this again. (P) As we do, the successes and failures of our own past can serve as an example for emerging economies — that it's possible to grow without polluting; (P) that lasting prosperity comes not from what a nation consumes, but from what it produces, and from the investments it makes in its people and its infrastructure.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! The logic is interesting. Lasting prosperity is from production and not from consumption. Therefore countries should produce and not consume? Or they should produce more and consume less? This simple illogical sentence shows that Barack Hussein Obama has no understanding of what supply-and-demand economics is. Above, Barack Hussein Obama talks about the importance of the free-market system. That is/was only a superficial presentation. The core of what Barack Hussein Obama wants is: a nation should invest in its people and infrastructure via government-controlled programs. The most efficient method of investing in people and infrastructure is the free-market economy, without government-controlled programs and excessive regulation.

30. And just as we must lead on behalf of the prosperity of our citizens, so we must safeguard their security. Our two nations know what it is to confront evil in the world. (P) Hitler's armies would not have stopped their killing had we not fought them on the beaches and on the landing grounds, in the fields and on the streets. We must never forget that there was nothing inevitable about our victory in that terrible war. It was won through the courage and character of our people.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! It is a LIE to just stop with these arguments for winning the Second World War. Courage and character of the British and American people were surely important in winning the Second World War. The courage and character of the French Resistance was also a factor. Of more importance is the fact that morality won over evilness. The practical, deciding factors were the tough resistance of the Russian Army, the never-ending supply of American armaments, and the successes of Allied air power. Evidently, Barack Hussein Obama cannot think in practical terms.³⁵

31. Precisely because we are willing to bear its burden, (P) we know well the cost of war. And that is why we built an alliance that was strong enough to defend this continent while deterring our enemies. At its core, NATO is rooted in the simple concept of Article Five: that no NATO nation will have to fend on its own; that allies will stand by one another, always. And for six decades, NATO has been the most successful alliance in human history.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. Article V of the NATO Treaty is famous. Additionally, this author knows that the exact wording of Article V of the NATO Treaty calls for member states to assist another member state under attack, yet the member states are not fully committed to do so!

32. Today, we confront a different enemy. (P) Terrorists have taken the lives of our citizens in New York and in London. And while al Qaeda seeks a religious war with the West, we must remember that they have killed thousands of Muslims — men, women and children — around the globe. Our nations are not and will never be at war with Islam. (P) Our fight is focused on defeating al Qaeda and its extremist allies. In that effort, we will not relent, as Osama bin Laden and his followers have learned. And as we fight an enemy that respects no law of war, we will continue to hold ourselves to a higher standard — by living up to the values, the rule of law and due process that we so ardently defend.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. Al-Qaeda does not seek a religious war with the West. It has a war and wants the destruction of the West. The fact that al-Qaeda has also killed thousands of Muslims is of no problem in Islam, as long as those killings help to advance Islam throughout the world. Therefore, the killing of Muslims is justified according to the Koran, Mohammed, and Allah. LIE. Great Britain and the United States of America confront the creeping war of instituting the Muslim Sharia laws in these countries. As such there is a subversive war being conducted in these two countries and in all of Europe, as well. The LIE is that Barack Hussein Obama's rules of engagement of the enemy on the battlefield are of a lower standard because the result is that the enemy has a propaganda advantage and an actual military advantage. Imbedded in this LIE in the text is that the enemy is engaged with the rule of law and due process. Military enemies of any state must be brought to trial under the rules of military courts of law and not by giving the enemy the guarantees of rights that civilians have under the historical constitution of Great Britain and the Constitution for the United States of America.

33. For almost a decade, Afghanistan has been a central front of these efforts. Throughout those years, you, the British people, have been a stalwart ally, along with so many others who fight by our side.

COMMENT: LIE. Beginning in 2004, over 50 percent of the British people have been consistently against the War in Afghanistan.³⁶ Only different British governments have been supportive of the War in Afghanistan. Furthermore, if the West is not at war with Islam, why is the conflict referred to as the War in Afghanistan? It is being fought against the Taliban and its affiliates who are much more than just conservative Islamic organizations that number approximately 136,000 active fighters, to say nothing of non-active cells.³⁷

34. Together, let us pay tribute to all of our men and women who have served and sacrificed over the last several years — for they are part of an unbroken line of heroes who have borne the heaviest burden for the freedoms that we enjoy. Because of them, we have broken the Taliban's momentum. Because of them, we have built the capacity of Afghan security forces. And because of them, we are now preparing to turn a corner in Afghanistan by transitioning to Afghan lead. And during this transition, we will pursue a lasting peace with those who break free of al Qaeda and respect the Afghan constitution and lay down arms. And we will ensure that Afghanistan is never a safe haven for terror, but is instead a country that is strong, sovereign, and able to stand on its own two feet. (P)

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. (Repeat of the LIE at paragraph 13.) The Taliban's momentum has not been broken. The use of the colloquialism "stand on its own two feet", as well as the other platitudes, is bad English usage for such an opportunity to speak to members of the British Parliament. A better wording would have been: We will insure that Afghanistan is never a safe haven for terror, but is instead a country that is strong, sovereign, and is able to achieve and accomplish its own goals by being independent, self-sufficient, and self supporting.

35. Indeed, our efforts in this young century have led us to a new concept for NATO that will give us the capabilities needed to meet new threats -- threats like terrorism and piracy, cyber attacks and ballistic missiles. But a revitalized NATO will continue to hew to that original vision of its founders, allowing us to rally collective action for the defense of our people, while building upon the broader belief of Roosevelt and Churchill that all nations have both rights and responsibilities, and all nations share a common interest in an international architecture that maintains the peace.

COMMENT: One of the new capabilities for NATO is to defend against ballistic missile attacks. The threat of such attacks comes from Iran. The United States of America was to establish missile defense systems in Poland and the Czech Republic. However, Barack Hussein Obama kowtowed to Russia and these defense systems against Iran were not established. Neither has Barack Hussein Obama done anything to counteract Iran's missile capabilities in attacking Europe, nor in building missile bases in Venezuela to attack the United States of America. Barack Hussein Obama is really a true maker of peace and defender of the free world! As far as NATO combating terrorism and cyber attacks is concerned, the fact that Barack Hussein Obama does not consider that terrorist attacks are terrorist attacks, but only man-caused disasters, means that NATO will be combating man-caused disasters. In the new NATO capabilities and goals, man-caused disasters are not mentioned. After only two months in office in 2009, Barack Hussein Obama destroyed terrorism with man-caused disasters.³⁸ Concerning the combating of cyber attacks, Barack Hussein Obama will use this as an argument to control the Internet.³⁹ The term cyber means anything having to do with the internet. LIE. For Barack Hussein Obama, having the mission of NATO being that of confronting and defending against cyber attacks is only a ploy for his regime and the left to gain total control of the Internet.

36. We also share a common interest (P) in stopping the spread of nuclear weapons. (P) Across the globe, nations are locking down nuclear materials so they never fall into the wrong hands -- because of our leadership. From North Korea to Iran, we've sent a message that those who flaunt their obligations will face consequences -- which is why America and the European Union just recently strengthened our sanctions on Iran, in large part because of the leadership of the United Kingdom and the United States. And while we hold others to account, (P) we will meet our own obligations under the Non-Proliferation Treaty, and strive for a world without nuclear weapons. (P)

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. Iran and North Korea are really scared and shaking because of Barack Hussein Obama's issued sanctions. LIE. The reductions in the United States of America nuclear arsenal under the terms of the Non-Proliferation Treaty START with Russia give Russia a nuclear weapons advantage. LIE. Article X of the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) "allows a state to leave the treaty if 'extraordinary events, related to the subject matter of this Treaty, have jeopardized the supreme interests of its country', giving three months' (ninety days') notice. 37. We share a common interest (P) in resolving conflicts that prolong human suffering and threaten to tear whole regions asunder. In Sudan, after years of war and thousands of deaths, we call on both North and South to pull back from the brink of violence and choose the path of peace. And in the Middle East, we stand united in our support for a secure Israel and a sovereign Palestine.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. As of May 26, 2011, North Sudan and South Sudan and Darfur are still in armed conflict.⁴¹ They have followed Barack Hussein Obama's path of peace! Barack Hussein Obama is making peace! LIE. In the May 19, 2011 speech on the Middle East and North Africa, Barack Hussein Obama signed Israel's death sentence as a nation.⁴²

38. And we share a common interest (P) in development that advances dignity and security. To succeed, we must cast aside the impulse to look at impoverished parts of the globe as a place for charity. Instead, we should empower the same forces that have allowed our own people to thrive: We should help the hungry to feed themselves, the doctors who care for the sick. We should support countries that confront corruption, and allow their people to innovate. And we should advance the truth that nations prosper when they allow women and girls to reach their full potential.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. The forces that "allowed our own people to thrive" are the forces of the free market and the forces of constitutionalism. LIE. 39. We do these things because we believe not simply in the rights of nations; we believe in the rights of citizens. That is the beacon that guided us (P) through our fight against fascism and our twilight struggle against communism. And today, that idea is being put to the test in the Middle East and North Africa. In country after country, people are mobilizing to free themselves from the grip of an iron fist. And while these movements for change are just six months old, we have seen them play out before -- from Eastern Europe to the Americas, from South Africa to Southeast Asia.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. "In country after country, people are mobilizing to free themselves from the grip of an iron fist" from dictatorships into the hands of the Muslim Brotherhood.⁴⁵ LIE. Freedom movements have played out from Eastern Europe to the Americas. Here are the results of freedom movements in Eastern Europe. As of 2011, 45 percent of the countries of Eastern Europe are considered to be free and 55 percent are considered to be only partly free or not free at all.⁴⁶ The next LIE is that people in Latin America and South America are mobilizing to free themselves. The truth is that freedom of expression is at risk in Latin America.⁴⁷ Countries with the least amount of press freedom in South America are: Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Brazil, Paraguay, Argentina, Suriname, Chile, Guyana, and Uruguay.⁴⁸ Without freedom of expression other freedoms are unattainable. LIE. Freedom Movements in Southeast Asia? 41. But make no mistake: (P) What we saw, what we are seeing in Tehran, in Tunis, in Tahrir Square, is a longing for the same freedoms that we take for granted here at home. It was a rejection of the notion that people in certain parts of the world don't want to be free, or need to have democracy imposed upon them. It was a rebuke to the worldview of al Qaeda, which smothers the rights of individuals, and would thereby subject them to perpetual poverty and violence.

COMMENT: LIE. What "we are seeing in Tehran is the beating of freedom."⁵¹ What we are seeing in Tunis and Tahrir Square is the beginning foothold of the Muslim Brotherhood and the eventual stifling of freedom.

42. Let there be no doubt: (P) The United States and United Kingdom stand squarely on the side of those who long to be free. And now, we must show that we will back up those words with deeds. (P) That means investing in the future of those nations that transition to democracy, starting with Tunisia and Egypt — by deepening ties of trade and commerce; by helping them demonstrate that freedom brings prosperity. And that means standing up for universal rights (P) — by sanctioning those who pursue repression, strengthening civil society, supporting the rights of minorities.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. In two years Barack Hussein Obama has never backed up his words with positive deeds! One only has to recall Barack Hussein Obama's inaction regarding freedom demonstrations in Iran, Georgia, and China! LIE. Barack Hussein Obama wants to sanction those who pursue repression, yet he does not sanction Hezbollah, Hamas, and Fatah!

And so to them, we must squarely acknowledge that, yes, we have enduring interests in the region (P) — to fight terror, sometimes with partners who may not be perfect; to protect against disruptions of the world's energy supply. COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! The hypocrite of hypocrites has spoken a lot of blossoming word and phrases in this paragraph and closed it with the greatest lie possible. LIE. Barack Hussein Obama's statement that "democracies are the closest allies we have" is relentlessly trampled upon by Barack Hussein Obama's vivid attempts to destroy Israel, the only republican democracy in the Middle East and the only real friend in that region that the United States of America has. According to a report from an Arab news agency based upon information from a high-level Egyptian official, al-Qaeda has brought 400 terrorists into Gaza.⁵²

44. It is that truth that guides our action (P) in Libya. It would have been easy at the outset of the crackdown in Libya to say that none of this was our business — that a nation's sovereignty is more important than the slaughter of civilians within its borders. That argument carries weight with some. (P) But we are different. (P) We embrace a broader responsibility. (P) And while we cannot stop every injustice, there are circumstances that cut through our caution — when a leader is threatening to massacre his people, and the international community is calling for action. That's why we stopped a massacre in Libya. (P) And we will not relent until the people of Libya are protected and the shadow of tyranny is lifted.

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! The Libyan Civil War is a war between the Libyan people and its government dictatorship. There was no reason for the United States of America to become involved. Throughout the last ten years the United States of America had a developing, positive relationship with Libya. Gaddafi posed no nuclear missile threat to the United States of America. Gaddafi posed no political threat to the United States of America. Stating that the United States of America and Britain got involved in Libya due to a threatening massacre is a LIE. With surety, the involvement is most likely due to the fact that Europe's NATO countries need Libyan oil. Gaddafi wanted Libyan oil to be paid for in gold (the proposed new Gold Dinar) and not in United States dollars.⁵³ In 2000, Saddam Hussein wanted oil paid in Euros and not in United States dollars.

45. We will proceed with humility, and the knowledge that we cannot dictate every outcome abroad. Ultimately, freedom must be won by the people themselves, (P) not imposed from without. But we can and must stand with those who so struggle. (P)

Because we have always believed that the future of our children and grandchildren will be better if other people's children and grandchildren are more prosperous and more free — from the beaches of Normandy to the Balkans to Benghazi. That is our interests and our ideals. (P) And if we fail to meet that responsibility, who would take our place, and what kind of world would we pass on?

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. The statement is a scapegoat presentation. Barack Hussein Obama never shows humility. Barack Hussein Obama is trying to dictate the outcome in Libya. Barack Hussein Obama does not stand with those who struggle in other countries, e.g. Myanmar, Ivory Coast, Nigeria, Sudan, Zimbabwe, Yemen, Syria, etc. According to Barack Hussein Obama, the United States of America and Great Britain may have certain interests and ideals. However, they also have geo-political and geo-economic interests.

46. Our action — our leadership — is essential to the cause of human dignity. And so we must act — and lead — with confidence in our ideals, and an abiding faith in the character of our people, who sent us all here today. (P)

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. If Barack Hussein Obama's leadership is so important to the cause of human dignity, why does Barack Hussein Obama not take up the struggle for human dignity in Myanmar, Iran, Syria, Israel, the Ivory Coast, Sudan, Yemen and even the United States of America? It may sound pedantic, but the American people did not send Barack Hussein Obama to London to give a speech. He went himself.

47. For there is one final quality that I believe makes the United States and the United Kingdom indispensable to this moment in history. And that is how we define ourselves as nations. (P)

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! LIE. The United States of America and the United Kingdom are "indispensable to this moment in history" because of their powerful armaments and the fact that they are the most important nations in NATO, not because of how they define themselves as a nation. A nation is defined by its institutions, its people, its culture, its geography, and its politics that results in the nation being able to exist independently.

48. Unlike most countries in the world, we do not define citizenship based on race or ethnicity. Being American or British is not about belonging to a certain group; it's about believing in a certain set of ideals -- the rights of individuals, the rule of law. (P) That is why we hold incredible diversity within our borders. (P) That's why there are people around the world right now who believe that if they come to America, if they come to

New York, if they come to London, if they work hard, they can pledge allegiance to our flag and call themselves Americans; if they come to England, they can make a new life for themselves and can sing God Save The Queen just like any other citizen.

COMMENT: Barack Hussein Obama defines his citizenship via forged birth certificates. At least the British birth certificates in the United Kingdom are valid documents and not photo-shopped forgeries. To this author's knowledge Barack Hussein Obama does not pledge allegiance to the American Flag and to the Republic for which it stands.

49. Yes, our diversity can lead to tension. (P) And throughout our history there have been heated debates about immigration and assimilation (P) in both of our countries. But even as these debates can be difficult, (P) we fundamentally recognize that our patchwork heritage is an enormous strength -- that in a world which will only grow smaller and more interconnected, (P) the example of our two nations says it is possible for people to be united by their ideals, (P) instead of divided by their differences; that it's possible for hearts to change (P) and old hatreds to pass; (P) that it's possible for the sons and daughters of former colonies to sit here as members of this great Parliament, and for the grandson of a Kenyan who served as a cook in the British Army to stand before you as President of the United States. (P) (Applause.)

COMMENT: Never begin a sentence with And! It is childish! The reality is that a patchwork heritage has to be a patchwork heritage of legal immigrants. Perhaps people are not only united by their ideals, but because of the freedoms they have to exercise their differences. Barack Hussein Obama forgot to say illegal President of the United States. This paragraph of platitudes hit the hearts of the sheeple who were present.

50. That is what defines us. (P) That is why the young men and women in the streets of Damascus and Cairo still reach for the rights our citizens enjoy, even if they sometimes differ with our policies. As two of the most powerful nations in the history of the world, we must always remember that the true source of our influence hasn't just been the size of our economies, or the reach of our militaries, or the land that we've claimed. It has been the values that we must never waver in defending around the world -- the idea that all beings are endowed by our Creator with certain rights that cannot be denied.

COMMENT: LIE. The rights that we have from the Creator that cannot be denied are rights that Barack Hussein Obama wants to control by his regime. Barack Hussein Obama wants to control life via ObamaCare. Barack Hussein Obama wants to control liberty via a new Bill of Rights.⁵⁴ Barack Hussein Obama wants only those pursuits of happiness that are socialist/communist interpretations of the pursuits of happiness. The ownership of private property is not one of them! The more private wealth is spread around the better it is for the Saul-Alinsky-ized parasites.

51. That is what forged our bond in the fire of war -- a bond made manifest by the friendship between two of our greatest leaders. Churchill and Roosevelt had their differences. (P) They were keen observers of each other's blind spots and shortcomings, if not always their own, and they were hard-headed about their ability to remake the world. But what joined the fates of these two men at that particular moment in history was not simply a shared interest in victory on the battlefield. It was a shared belief in the ultimate triumph of human freedom and human dignity (P) — a conviction that we have a say in how this story ends. (P)

COMMENT: Barack Hussein Obama has disguised his speech with statements that are lies and he is now closing the speech with platitudes.

52. This conviction lives on in their people today. (P) The challenges we face are great. (P) The work before us is hard. (P) But we have come through a difficult decade, (P) and whenever the tests and trials ahead may seem too big or too many, let us turn to their example, and the words that Churchill spoke on the day that Europe was freed:

COMMENT: Platitudes of platitudes!!! If Barack Hussein Obama is such a great history genius, as he has often claimed, why can he not name May 8, 1945 as Victory over Europe Day?

53. "In the long years to come, not only will the people of this island but...the world, wherever the bird of freedom chirps in [the] human heart, look back to what we've done, and they will say 'do not despair, do not yield...march straightforward'."

COMMENT: The important parts of the quotation from Winston Churchill that Barack Hussein Obama left out (highlighted) are "do not despair, do not yield to violence and tyranny, march straightforward and die if need be - unconquered." This author suspects that the reason for leaving out these words is that Barack Hussein Obama does not care if the United States of America is defeated in Iraq or Afghanistan. He has often stated that victory is not important. Furthermore, Barack Hussein Obama has nothing against the world Islamic movement, as can be seen in his policies towards the Muslim Brotherhood or the Saudi king, who is the leader of the Islamic Wahhabite movement that has as one of its goals the spreading of Islam throughout the world.⁵⁵

54. With courage and purpose, with humility and with hope, with faith in the promise of tomorrow, let us march straightforward together, enduring allies in the cause of a world that is more peaceful, more prosperous, and more just. (P)

COMMENT: Hope plus promise of tomorrow is nothing more than Hope and Change for the United Kingdom à la Barack Hussein Obama. Under the policies of Barack Hussein Obama the world will not be more peaceful because Barack Hussein Obama has no spine when it comes to confronting aggressors. The world will not be more prosperous because Barack Hussein Obama wants international control of everything in every country. The world will not be more just because Barack Hussein Obama is ready to sacrifice American constitutional freedoms for a world government, most probably headed by himself with the backing of George Soros, and the future, world lamestream media.

55. Thank you very much. (Applause.)

COMMENT: The world's greatest orator and truth-teller thanks the British parliamentarian sheeple for listening to his godly sentences as they were uttered by his divine being. The sheeple react accordingly, for they know not what they do!

Closing Statement

A statistical summary of the Barack Hussein Obama's speech results in the following points:

Number of paragraphs counting one-sentence paragraphs and the greeting and the closing.	55
Number of sentences in the speech.	157
Sentences that begin with And, which is childish rhetoric.	35
Uses of I	8
Uses of my	2
Uses of our	92
Uses of we	102
Applause	3
Laughter	4
Documented Lies	58
Number of platitudes	93

Although he never explicitly says so, there is little doubt in this speech that Barack Hussein Obama often means the United Kingdom and the United States of America when he uses our and we; but the listener/reader does not always know when Barack Hussein Obama means the United Kingdom and the United States of America. At the same time, there is his undercurrent insinuation that he also includes himself when stating our and we. In almost all of his speeches, the reader does not really know whom Barack Hussein Obama means when he states our or we.

Excluding the beginning thank-you statement and the closing thank-you statement there are 93 obvious and author-decided platitudes in 53 paragraphs. There are 58 documented lies in 53 paragraphs excluding the thank-you opening and the thank-you closing. There are 35 sentences out of 157 sentences that begin with And. This is a very childish characteristic in oratory that is evidence of an immature sense of reality.

Barack Hussein Obama references Winston Churchill five times. Attention is brought to the fact that Barack Hussein Obama's returning of the Winston Churchill Bust to the United Kingdom was considered a snub by the British press, in spite of the fact that the bust was on loan from former Prime Minister Tony Blair to the Oval Office and President George W. Bush. In this author's opinion there is a hypocritical undertone in that Barack Hussein Obama is saying Winston Churchill is good enough to quote because Barack Hussein Obama is giving a speech to the Members of Parliament, but the Winston Churchill Bust was not good enough to remain in the Oval Office.

There are two types of liars: compulsive liars and pathological liars. A compulsive liar is a person who keeps on lying out of habit. It is a normal reflexive method of reacting to daily situations and questions. People who have a compulsive liar syndrome have some kind of mental illness that causes them to show the following symptoms:⁵⁶

"Attention Seekers: There are certain people who need to be the center of attraction where ever they go. In order to maintain their high popularity rate, they begin to build up attention seeking white lies. These lies soon become a part of their personalities and they never find it necessary to shrug off the harmless lies.

Create Stories: Creating stories of valor and great deeds about oneself all the time, is a compulsive liar symptom. They make up such great stories about themselves, that they lose their charm once the cat is out of the bag. For example, someone claims to have fought a bloody fight with a goon at the local bar, when actually he is known to get scared or has even fainted at the sight of blood.

Covering Up: When a compulsive liar gets caught in her/his lies, s/he will cook up another story of how s/he is falsely accused or will deny it totally with another story to back up her/his claim of innocence.

Same Story, Different Characters: Plagiarism becomes another part of obsessive compulsive liar symptoms. One may not realize mentioning the same lie to the same person, more than once. Each time he says the same lie, the basic concept remains the same, only the characters, place, date of occurrence, etc. may change.

Poor Self Esteem: The hallmark of compulsive liar disorder symptom is low self esteem. An inferiority complex forces the person to make up stories, that makes him/her feel worthy and appreciated.

Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD): This is mostly apparent in compulsive lying disorder in children. Even adults suffering from ADHD with impulsive behavior exhibit compulsive lying symptoms.

⁵⁶ <http://www.buzzle.com/articles/compulsive-liar-symptoms.html>.

Bipolar Disorder: People suffering from a bipolar disorder are always suffering from mood swings, that range from depression to a manic behavior. During this period, their impulsive behavior is switched on, that forces them to lie through their nose.

Other Addictions: Drug addicts, alcoholics, gamblers, etc. who are into similar activities that cause them to fall into trouble more than often, may exhibit compulsive liar disorder. They may keep lying to help themselves out of sticky situations, get out of financial mess, hide the truth about themselves from their family and friends.

Reality Denial: People who are unable to face the truth or unable to admit truth are true compulsive liars. They may turn on an elaborate emotional display that takes the attention away from their lies."

A pathological liar is a person who lies in order to achieve a set goal. These persons are ready at any moment to throw someone, close friend or adversary under the bus. They have little or no concern for others, yet at the same time such a person will say that s/he always supports the fellow citizen. It is an anti-social personality disorder that shows the following symptoms.⁵⁷

Changing the Story: When questioned about details they will constantly change the story.

Contradictions: Contradictions will appear in what they have stated because the lies are too many for the person to keep track of them.

On the Defense: The pathological liar is insecure and this will cause such a person to act defensively when challenged. At the same time the pathological liar may want sympathy and will continue to lie to get it.

No Value for the Truth: The truth means nothing to a pathological liar.

Low Self-esteem: A pathological liar has the need to show that s/he is better than others.

Depression: The pathological liar feels the s/he has no accomplishments, or not enough accomplishments in life.

Criminal Mentality: The person lies just to achieve the goal.

Summa Summarum

It is this author's opinion that Barack Hussein Obama is neither a compulsive liar nor a pathological liar. Barak Hussein Obama is a mixture of both, plus a mixture of a third and fourth type of lying. Barack Hussein Obama's character mixture is very much the same as a Saul Alinsky disciple reacting to political situations. In his book Rules for Radicals (1971), Saul Alinsky proclaims that The use of The Ideology of Change and Hope "is a power technique (and) is key to mobilizing 'the dispossessed' to ban together and create pressure on the system". Saul Alinsky taught, "Lie, dissemble, ridicule and deride your opponents ... do what you need to do to get ahead. Listen to and learn their needs and take advantage – do not care. Manipulate the morals. Lying is never wrong as long as it leads you to a position of power. Say what you need to say to get ahead. The ends justify the means."⁵⁸ When this attitude is coupled with the Islamic behavior of al-taqiyya, which essentially means that the believer can do anything moral or immoral, lie and deceive, and present the self as immaculate, so long as it promotes the spread of Islam throughout the world, then that behavior is not wrong. This is the truthful, collective personality of the hypocrite and liar Barack Hussein Obama.

The only solace is to know that "God and men hate so foul a liar."
