COMMENT ON BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA

ISSUE NUMBER FOURTEEN

In this issue of Renowned, Historical Voices Comment on Barack Hussein Obama there are 72 personalities making a total of 307 comments. The time span is approximately the end of the eighteenth century to approximately the middle of the nineteenth century. The comments sometimes use the acronym POLDS, which means Progressives, Obots, Leftists, Dumbed-downers.

1. John Adams (1735-1826)

John Adams, second President of the United States (1797–1801), served earlier as the first Vice President of the United States. He was an American Founding Father, a statesman, diplomat, a leader of American independence from Great Britain, and an Enlightenment political theorist who promoted republicanism.

- On what Obama Cannot accomplish: Now to what higher object, what greater character, can any mortal aspire than to be possessed of all this knowledge, well digested and ready at command, to assist the feeble and friendless, to countenance the haughty and lawless, to procure redress of wrongs, the advancement of right, to assert and maintain liberty and virtue, to discourage and abolish tyranny and vice?¹
- On criticizing Obama: A pen is certainly an excellent instrument to fix a man's attention and to inflame his ambition.²
- On American liberty and government: I always consider the settlement of America with reverence and wonder, as the opening of a grand scene and design in providence, for the illumination of the ignorant and the emancipation of the slavish part of mankind all over the earth.³

Liberty cannot be preserved without a general knowledge among the people, who have a right and a desire to know; but besides this, they have a right, an indisputable, unalienable, indefeasible, divine right to that most dreaded and envied kind of knowledge, I mean of the characters and conduct of their rulers.⁴

Let every sluice of knowledge be opened and set a-flowing.⁵
There is danger from all men. The only maxim of a free government ought to be to trust no man living with power to endanger the public liberty.⁶

This is the most magnificent movement of all! There is a dignity, a majesty, a sublimity, in this last effort of the patriots that I greatly admire. The people should never rise without doing something to be remembered – something notable and striking. This destruction of the tea is so bold, so daring, so firm, intrepid and inflexible, and it must have so important consequences, and so lasting, that I can't but consider it as an epoch in history!⁷

A government of laws, and not of men.⁸

Metaphysicians and politicians may dispute forever, but they will never find any other moral principle or foundation of rule or obedience, than the consent of governors and governed.⁹

I agree with you that in politics the middle way is none at all.¹⁰

Yesterday, the greatest question was decided which ever was debated in America, and a greater perhaps never was nor will be decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States."¹¹

The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forevermore.¹²

The happiness of society is the end of government.¹³

The Judicial Power ought to be distinct from both the legislative and executive, and independent upon both, that so it may be a check upon both, as both should be checks upon that.¹⁴

I must study politics and war that my sons may have liberty to study mathematics and philosophy. My sons ought to study mathematics, and philosophy, geography, natural history, naval architecture, navigation, commerce, and agriculture, in order to give their children a right to study painting, poetry, music, architecture, statuary, tapestry, and porcelain.¹⁵

My country has in its wisdom contrived for me the most insignificant office [the vice-presidency] that ever the invention of man contrived or his imagination conceived; and as I can do neither good nor evil, I must be borne away by others and meet the common fate.¹⁶

I pray Heaven to bestow the best of blessings on this house and all that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise men ever rule under this roof.¹⁷

The fundamental article of my political creed is that despotism, or unlimited sovereignty, or absolute power, is the same in a majority of a popular assembly, an aristocratical council, an oligarchical junto, and a single emperor.¹⁸

2. Michel Guillaume Jean de Crèvecoeur [J. Hector St. John] (1735-1813)

Michel Guillaume Jean de Crèvecoeur, naturalized in New York as John Hector St. John, was a French-American writer. His Letters from an American Farmer was widely read and he was highly regarded as political and social writer and as an agricultural expert. St. Johnsbury, Vermont is named after him.

- On what an American is: What then is the American, this new man? He is either an European, or the descendant of an European, hence that strange mixture of blood, which you will find in no other country. Here individuals of all nations are melted into a new race of men, whose labors and posterity will one day cause great changes in the world.¹⁹

3. Charles Joseph, Prince de Ligne (1735-1814)

Charles-Joseph Lamoral, 7th Prince de Ligne was a Field Marshal and writer. One of his sons and many of his relatives were prominent in the Belgian revolutionary movement in 1788 and he was asked to be the leader of the Belgian movement. He declined with the famous statement that "he never revolted in the winter."

4. Paul Revere (1735-1818)

Paul Revere, American silversmith, early industrialist, and patriot in the American Revolution, is famous for warning Colonial militia of approaching British forces before the battles of Lexington and Concord. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow dramatized the alert in his poem Paul Revere's Ride.

- On not giving up liberty: To the memory of the glorious Ninety-two: members of the Honorable House of Representatives of the Massachusetts Bay who, undaunted by the insolent menaces of villains in power, from a strict regard to conscience and the liberties of their constituents on the 30th of June 1768 voted NOT TO RESCIND.²¹

If the British went out by water, to show two lanterns in the North Church steeple; and if by land, one as a signal, for we were apprehensive it would be difficult to cross the Charles River or get over Boston Neck.²²

5. Patrick Henry (1736-1799)

Patrick Henry, attorney, planter, orator, and politician led the movement for independence in Virginia in the 1770s. He was a Founding Father of the United States of America and served as the first and sixth post-colonial Governor of Virginia.

- To American Patriots on liberty: Caesar had his Brutus; Charles the First his Cromwell; and George the Third ["Treason!" cried the Speaker] – may profit by their example. If this be treason, make the most of it.²³
- On being an American: I am not a Virginian, but an American.²⁴
- To American Patriots on hope and liberty: It is natural for man to indulge in the illusions of hope. We are apt to shut our eyes against a painful truth, and listen to the song of that siren till she transforms us into beasts. Is this the part of wise men, engaged in a great and arduous struggle for liberty? Are we disposed to be the number of those who, having eyes, see not, and having ears, hear not, the things which so nearly concern their temporal salvation? For my part, whatever anguish of spirit it may cost, I am willing to know the whole truth; to know the worst, and to provide for it.²⁵
- To American Patriots on knowing the future:: I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know no way of judging of the future but by the past.²⁶

We are not weak if we make a proper use of those means which the God of Nature has placed in our power. The battle, sir, is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave.²⁷

- To American Patriots on fighting for liberty: It is vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. The gentlemen may cry, Peace, peace! but there is no peace. The war has actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field. Why stand we here idle? What is it that the gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God. I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!²⁸
- To American Patriots on religious freedom: That religion, or the duty which we owe to our Creator, and the manner of discharging it, can be directed only by reason and conviction, not by force or violence; and therefore all men are equally entitled to the free exercise of religion, according to the dictates of conscience; and that it is the mutual duty of all to practice Christian forbearance, love, and charity towards each other.²⁹

6. Edward Gibbon (1737-1794)

Edward Gibbon, English historian and Member of Parliament wrote The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Written in high quality with prosaic irony, and the using primary sources, Gibbon's masterpiece also contains a critique on organized religion.

- On why there must be separation of church and state: The various modes of worship, which prevailed in the Roman world, were all considered by the people, as equally true; by the philosopher, as equally false; and by the magistrate, as equally useful.³⁰
- On how Obama's nomination of law-evoking czars is a danger to freedom: The principles of a free constitution are irrevocably lost, when the legislative power is nominated by the executive.³¹
- On the joys of historians researching the Obama regime: History of this regime is indeed little more than the register of the crimes, follies, and misfortunes of *POLDS*³²

7. Thomas Paine (1737-1809)

Thomas Paine, English-American pamphleteer, political activist, author, political theorist and revolutionary, was instrumental in inspiring America Patriots in 1776 to declare independence from Great Britain. His ideas in Common Sense (1776), The American Crisis (1776), The Rights of Man (1791-1792), and The Age of Reason (1794, 1795, 1807) mirror the Enlightenment era's emphasis on human rights.

- In defense of liberty after the demise of the Obama regime:
From the east to the west blow the trumpet to arms!
Through the land let The sound of it flee;
Let the far and the near all unite, with a cheer,
In defense of our Liberty Tree.³⁷
- *Advice on returning to freedom after Obama: Society in every state is a blessing, but Government, even in its best state, is but a necessary evil; in its worst state, an intolerable one.*³⁸

Suspicion is the companion of mean souls, and the bane of all good society.³⁹

When we are planning for posterity, we ought to remember that virtue is not hereditary.⁴⁰

O! ye that love freedom! Ye that dare oppose not only the tyranny but the tyranny, stand forth!⁴¹

These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly; it is dearness only that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed, if so celestial an article as Freedom should not be highly rated.⁴²

Panics, in some cases, have their uses; they produce as much good as hurt. Their duration is always short; the mind soon grows through them and acquires a firmer habit than before. But their peculiar advantage is that they are the touchstones of sincerity and hypocrisy, and bring things and men to light, which might otherwise have lain forever undiscovered.⁴³

Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom, like most men, undergo the fatigue of supporting it.⁴⁴

We fight not to enslave, but to set a country free from POLDS and to make room ... for honest men to live in.⁴⁵

It is the object only of this struggle to free ourselves from Obama that makes it honorable. And if there was ever a just struggle ... it is this in which America is now engaged.⁴⁶

- On happiness in America without POLDS: Not a place upon earth might be a happy as America. Her situation is remote from all the wrangling world, and she has nothing to do but to trade with them.⁴⁷
- On why hope and change under Obama is doomed to failure: A bad cause will ever be supported by bad means and bad men.⁴⁸
- On the Obamas' superficiality: The Obamas are not affected by the reality of distress touching their hearts, but by the showy resemblance of it striking their imagination. They pity the plumage, but forget the eddy bird.⁴⁹
- On reporters calling Obama sublime: When authors and critics talk of the sublime, they see not how nearly it borders on the ridiculous.⁵⁰

14. Georg Christoph Lichtenberg (1742-1799)

Georg Christoph Lichtenberg, a German Anglophile, satirist, and scientist, was the first professor of experimental physics in Germany. However, his fame rests upon his so-called Sudelbücher, (scrapbooks), as well as the discovery of Lichtenberg figures and for his discovery of the strange treelike patterns in electric discharges called Lichtenberg figures. The Lichtenberg ratio, paper sizes based upon a ratio of $\sqrt{2}$, is named after him.

- On Obama's success: Soothsayers make a better living in the world than truthsayers.⁵⁸
- On Obama's astonishment with Bo, the dog: The thing that astonished him was that Bo should have two holes cut in his coat exactly at the place where his eyes are.⁵⁹

15. William Henry, Duke of Gloucester (1743-1805)

Prince William Henry, Duke of Gloucester and Edinburgh was a member of the British Royal Family, a grandson of George II and a younger brother of George III.

- On an Obama speech: Another damned, thick, nothing.⁶⁰

16. Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826)

Thomas Jefferson, American Founding Father, principal author of the Declaration of Independence (1776), third President of the United States (1801–1809), served in the Continental Congress, representing Virginia and then served as wartime Governor of Virginia (1779–1781). From mid-1784 he was a diplomat in Paris, becoming in May 1785, the United States Minister to France. Serving under President George Washington, Jefferson was also the first United States Secretary of State (1790–1793). He and James Madison organized the Democratic-Republican Party, He was elected Vice President in 1796. John Adams became President.

- On learning ethics that Obama did not learn: A lively and lasting sense of filial duty is more effectually impressed on the mind of a son or daughter by reading King Lear, than by all the dry volumes of ethics, and divinity, that ever were written.⁶¹

- On liberty: The God who gave us life, gave us liberty at the same time.⁶²

When, in the course of human events' it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. ... We must therefore hold them [the British] as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends. ... And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.⁶³

- On the necessity of non-involvement of government in people's lives: The Newtonian principle of gravitation is now more firmly established, on the basis of reason, than it would be were the government to step in, and to make it an article of necessary faith. Reason and experiment have been indulged, and error has fled before them.⁶⁴
- On Obama's use of coercion: Subject opinion to coercion: whom will you make your inquisitors? Fallible men; men governed by bad passions, by private as well as public reason.⁶⁵

Is uniformity of opinion] attainable? Millions of innocent men, women, and children, since the introduction of Christianity, have been burnt, tortured, fined, imprisoned; yet we have not advanced one inch towards uniformity. What has been the effect of coercion? To make one half the world fools, and the other half hypocrites.⁶⁶

- On God being just against POLDS: Indeed, I tremble for them when I reflect that God is just.⁶⁷
- On why Obama and POLDS are is not a chosen one: Those who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God, if ever he had a chosen people, whose breasts He has made His peculiar deposit for substantial and genuine virtue.⁶⁸

- On Obama's lying: He who permits himself to tell a lie once, finds it much easier to do it a second and third time, till at length it becomes habitual; he tells lies without attending to it, and truths without the world's believing him. This falsehood of the tongue leads to that of the heart, and in time depraves all its good dispositions.⁶⁹
- O freedom of the press: The basis of our government being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right; and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter.⁷⁰
- On the Obama regime: Four years of Experience declares that Obama and his POLDS is the only animal which devours American citizens; for I can apply no milder term to the Obama regime, and to the general prey of the POLDS on American society.⁷¹
- To American Patriots: I hold it, that a little rebellion, now and then, is a good thing, and as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical.⁷²

What country before ever existed 236 years without a rebellion? The tree of Liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure.⁷³

The republican is the only form of government which is not eternally at open or secret war with the rights of mankind.⁷⁴

We are not to expect to be translated from Obama despotism to liberty in a featherbed.⁷⁵

Let what will be said or done, preserve your sangfroid immovably, and to every obstacle, oppose patience, perseverance, and soothing language.⁷⁶

We confide in our strength, without boasting of it; we respect that of others, without fearing it.⁷⁷

I have sworn upon the alter of God, external hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man.⁷⁸

If there be any among us who would wish to dissolve this Union or to change its republican form, let them stand undisturbed as monuments of the safety with which error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it.⁷⁹

But would the honest patriot, in the full tide of successful experiment, abandon a government which has so far kept us free and firm, on the theoretic and visionary fear that this government, the world's best hope, may by possibility want energy to preserve itself?⁸⁰

Sometimes it is said that man cannot be trusted with the government of himself. Can he, then, be trusted with the government of others? Or have we found angels in the forms of POLDS to govern him?⁸¹

Still one thing more, fellow citizens – a wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities.⁸²

Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none. Freedom of religion, freedom of the press, and freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus, and trial by juries impartially selected. These principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps through an age of revolution and reformation. The wisdom of our sages and the blood of our heroes have been devoted to their attainment. They should be the creed of our political faith, the text of civil instruction, the touchstone by which to try the services of those we trust; and should we wander from them in moments of error or alarm, let us hasten to retrace our steps and to regain the road which alone leads to peace, liberty, and safety.⁸³

Whensoever hostile aggressions require a resort to war, we must meet our duty and convince the world that we are just friends and brave enemies.⁸⁴ The care of human life and happiness, and not their destruction, is the first and only legitimate object of good government.⁸⁵

Politics, like religion, hold up the torches of martyrdom to the reformers of ^ error.⁸⁶

If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be.⁸⁷

- On the consequence of Obama's desire to stay in power forever: Offices are as acceptable here as elsewhere, and whenever a man has cast a longing eye on them, a rottenness begins in his conduct.⁹²
- On the source of governmental power: I know no safe depository of the ultimate powers of the society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion.⁹³
- Advice to American Patriots: Ware not afraid to follow truth wherever it may lead, nor to tolerate any error so long as reason is left free to combat it.⁹⁴
- Warning to Obama and POLDS: And even should your cloud of barbarism and despotism again obscure the science and liberties of America, this country remains to preserve and restore light and liberty In short, the flames kindled on the fourth of July, 1776, have spread over too much of the globe to be extinguished by the feeble engines of despotism; on the contrary, they will consume these engines and all who work them.⁹⁵
- On the strength of Republican Democracy: Men by their constitutions are naturally divided into two parties: (1) Those who fear and distrust the people and wish to draw all powers from them into the hands of the higher classes, (2) Those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe, although not the most wise depository of the public interests. In every country these two parties exist;

18. The Letters of Junius (1769-1771)

Letters of Junius (or Junius: Stat nominis umbra) is a collection of private and open letters from an anonymous polemicist most likely Sir Philip Francis, Irish-born British politician; William Petty-FitzMaurice, 1st Marquess of Lansdowne, known as The Earl of Shelburne between 1761 and 1784, by which title he is generally known to history, an Irish-born British Whig statesman; Lord George Sackville, George Germain, 1st Viscount Sackville, The Honorable George Sackville until 1720, Lord George Sackville from 1720 to 1770 and Lord George Germain from 1770 to 1782, a British soldier and politician who was Secretary of State for America in Lord North's cabinet during the American War of Independence; and Lord Temple, Earl of Cobham, British politician.

Junius is the pseudonym of the author of a series of letters from 1769-1771 in the London Public Advertiser (published in book form in 1772).

19. The Constitution for the United States of America (1787)

The Constitution for the United States of America is the supreme law of the country. The Constitution was adopted on September 17, 1787, by the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and ratified by conventions in eleven states. It went into effect on March 4, 1789. The first ten constitutional amendments ratified by three-fourths of the states in 1791 are called the Bill of Rights. The Constitution has been amended seventeen additional times.

- The source of governmental power: We the people of the United States, in order To form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.¹⁰⁵
- On the qualifications to be president: No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that Office who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United States.¹⁰⁶

¹⁰⁶ Article II, Section 1, Clause 5. From Joseph Story, Commentaries on the Constitution 3:§§ 1472—73, we read § 1473. "It is indispensable, too, that the president should be a natural born citizen of the United States; or a citizen at the adoption of the constitution, and for fourteen years before his election. This permission of a naturalized citizen to become president is an exception from the great fundamental policy of all governments, to exclude foreign influence from their executive councils and duties. It was doubtless introduced (for it has now become by lapse of time merely nominal, and will soon become wholly extinct) out of respect to those distinguished revolutionary patriots, who were born in a foreign land, and yet had entitled themselves to high honours in their adopted country. A positive exclusion of them from the office would have been unjust to their merits, and painful to their sensibilities. But the general propriety of the exclusion of foreigners, in common cases, will scarcely be doubted by any sound statesman. It cuts off all chances for ambitious foreigners, who might otherwise be intriguing for the office; and interposes a barrier against those corrupt interferences of foreign governments in executive elections, which have inflicted the most serious evils upon the elective

- On the removal of government officials: The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.¹⁰⁷
- On Treason: Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.¹⁰⁸ Article III, sec. 3
- On the Supreme Law of the Land and the responsibility of judges: This Constitution, and the laws of the United States, which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the Supreme Law of the land; and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.¹⁰⁹
- The Amendments (Selected): Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.¹¹⁰

A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.¹¹¹

No Soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.¹¹² monarchies of Europe. Germany, Poland, and even the pontificate of Rome, are sad, but instructive examples of the enduring mischiefs arising from this source. A residence of fourteen years in the United States is also made an indispensable requisite for every candidate; so, that the people may have a full opportunity to know his character and merits, and that he may have mingled in the duties, and felt the interests, and understood the principles, and nourished the attachments, belonging to every citizen in a republican government. By "residence," in the constitution, is to be understood, not an absolute inhabitancy within the United States during the whole period; but such an inhabitancy, as includes a permanent domicil (sic) in the United States. No one has supposed, that a temporary absence abroad on public business, and especially on an embassy to a foreign nation, would interrupt the residence of a citizen, so as to disqualify him for office. If the word were to be construed with such strictness, then a mere journey through any foreign adjacent territory for health, or for pleasure, or a commorancy there for a single day, would amount to a disqualification. Under such a construction a military or civil officer, who should have been in Canada during the late war on public business, would have lost his eligibility. The true sense of residence in the constitution is fixed domicil, or being out of the United States, and settled abroad for the purpose of general inhabitancy, animo manendi, and not for a mere temporary and fugitive purpose, in transitu.

This is the explanation of why Barack Hussein Obama is an illegal president and a fraud.

Joseph Story (1779-1845) was an American lawyer, jurist, and Supreme Court Justice, from 1811 to 1845. He is mostly remembered for Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States (1833)(Story has the title wrong!) It is the cornerstone and the accepted comprehensive commentary ever written on the Constitution.

- On anti-Obama government: All communities divide themselves into the few and the many. The first are the rich and wellborn, the other the mass of the people. ... The people are turbulent and changing; they seldom judge or determine right. Give therefore to the first class a distinct, permanent share in the government. They will check the unsteadiness of the second, and as they cannot receive any advantage by a change, they therefore will ever maintain good government.²¹⁰

We are now forming a republican government. Real liberty is neither found in despotism or the extremes of democracy, but in moderate governments.²¹¹

Let Americans disdain to be the instruments of European greatness. Let the thirteen States, bound together in a strict and indissoluble Union, concur in erecting one great American system, superior to the control of all transatlantic force or influence, and able to dictate the terms of the connection between the old and the new world!²¹²

Government implies the power of making laws. It is essential to the idea of a law, that it be attended with a sanction; or, in other words, a penalty or punishment for disobedience.²¹³

Why has government been instituted at all? Because the passions of men will not conform to the dictates of reason and justice, without constraint.²¹⁴

Every power vested in a government is in its nature sovereign, and includes by force of the term a right to employ all the means requisite to the attainment of the ends of such Power.²¹⁵

If the end be clearly comprehended within any of the specified powers, and if the measure have an obvious relation to that end, and is not forbidden by any particular provision of the Constitution, it may safely be deemed to come within the compass of the national authority.²¹⁶

50. John Marshall (1755-1835)

John Marshall was the Chief Justice of the United States (1801–1835) whose court decisions provided the basis for American constitutional law. Under Marshall's leadership the Supreme Court became an equal branch of government with the legislative and executive branches.

- What Obama does not comprehend about the judicial system, the Constitution, and the government:

It is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is. If two laws conflict with each other, the courts must decide on the operation of each. ... This is of the very essence of judicial duty.²¹⁷

We must never forget that it is a constitution we are expounding.²¹⁸

This provision is made in a constitution, intended to endure for ages to come, and consequently, to be adapted to the various crises of human affairs.²¹⁹

The power to tax involves the power to destroy.²²¹

The people made the Constitution, and the people can unmake it. It is the creature of their own will, and lives only by their will.²²²

51. William Blake (1757-1827)

William Blake, English poet, painter, printmaker, and an important figure in the poetry and visual arts of the Romantic Age, wrote prophetic poetry. His works in poetry and art concern the body concept of God and human existence.

- On why Obama is anti-human:
To Mercy, Pity, Peace, and Love
All pray in their distress;
And to these virtues of delight
Return their thankfulness.²²⁴

For Mercy has a human heart,
Pity, a human face,
And Love, the human form divine,
And Peace, the human dress.²²⁵

And all must love the human form,
In heathen, Turk, or Jew;
Where Mercy, Love, & Pity dwell
There God is dwelling too.²²⁶

- Monarchy versus republic: A monarchy is a merchantman which sails well, but will sometimes strike on a rock, and go to the bottom; a republic is a raft which will never sink, but then your feet are always in the water.²³¹

53. James Monroe (1758-1831)

James Monroe; the fifth President of the United States (1817–1825), was the last president who was a Founding Father of the United States and the third of them to die on Independence Day, and the last president from the political Virginia dynasty and the generation of Virginia republicans. He is known as the author of the Monroe Doctrine, December 2, 1823, that stated attempts by European nations to colonize land or interfere with states in North or South America would be considered as acts of aggression and result in United States intervention.

We owe it, therefore, to candor, and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any Islamic power we ... shall not interfere. But with the governments whose independence we have acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling, in any other manner, their destiny, by any Islamic power, in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States.²³⁵

54. Horatio Nelson (1758- 1805)

Horatio Nelson, 1st Viscount Nelson, 1st Duke of Bronté, a flag officer famous for his service in the Royal Navy, particularly during the Napoleonic Wars, was noted for his unconventional tactics, quick grasp of strategy, and leadership. His most notable of numerous victories is the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805, during which he was shot and killed.

If POLDS be educated for dependence; that is; to act according to the will of another fallible being', and submit, right or wrong, to power, where are we to stop?²⁶⁷

How can a rational being be ennobled by anything that is not obtained by its exertions?²⁶⁸

POLDS are systematically degraded by receiving the trivial attentions which Democrat politicians think it charitably to pay to them, when, in fact, the Democrat politicians are insulting their own pseudo-superiority.²⁶⁹

It would be an endless task to trace the variety of meannesses, cares, and sorrows into which POLDS are plunged by the prevailing opinion that they were dumbed-down rather to feel than reason, and that all the power they obtain must be obtained by their imbecility.²⁷⁰

POLDS ought to have caretakers instead of being arbitrarily let loose without any direct responsibility.²⁷¹

Till society is very differently constituted, Democrat politicians and POLDS, I fear, will still insist on being obeyed because they will be obeyed, and constantly endeavor to settle that power on their divine right which will not bear the investigation of reason.²⁷²

The same energy of character which renders a POLD a daring villain would have rendered him useful to society, had that society been well organized.²⁷³

- On Obama's extremism: Every political policy carried to the extreme must be productive of evil.²⁷⁴
- On a possible execution of Obama: Executions, far from being useful examples to the survivors, have, I am persuaded, a quite contrary effect, by hardening the heart they ought to terrify. Besides, the fear of an ignominious death, I believe, never deterred anyone from the commission of a crime, because in committing it the mind is roused to activity about present circumstances.²⁷⁵

François-Noël Babeuf, French political agitator and journalist of the Revolutionary period, was an active participant in the Conspiracy of the Equals, the so-called communists of the French Revolution.

- Early communism according to the dictatorship of Obama: Let the revolting distinction of rich and poor disappear once and for all, the distinction of great and small, of masters and valets, of governors and governed. Let there be no other difference between human beings than those of age and sex. Since all have the same needs and the same faculties, let there be one education.²⁷⁷

We aim at something more sublime and more equitable – the common good, or the community of goods. We demand, we would have, the communal enjoyment of the fruits of the earth, fruits which are for everyone.²⁷⁸

68. Thomas Robert Malthus (1756-1834)

The Reverend Thomas Robert Malthus, British scholar of political economy and demography, popularized the economic theories of population growth and rent.

- On the silent threat of Islam to America and the world: Population, when unchecked, increases in a geometrical ratio. Subsistence increases only in an arithmetical ratio. A slight acquaintance with numbers will show the immensity of the first power in comparison of the second.²⁸⁹

69. Ernst Friedrich Herbert von Münster (1766-1839)

Count Ernst Friedrich Herbert zu Münster was a German statesman, politician and minister in the service of the House of Hanover and head of the German Chancery in London between 1805-1831. He is not known as a writer but was an exceedingly successful administrator for the House of Hanover, which he successfully represented at the Congress of Vienna in 1815.

- A solution to the problem Obama: Absolutism tempered by assassination.²⁹⁰

70. John Quincy Adams (1767-1848)

John Quincy Adams, American diplomat, Senator, Congressional representative, Secretary of State, was the son of President John Adams and Abigail Adams. As Secretary of State he negotiated the Treaty of Ghent that ended the War of 1812, the northern border of the United States with Canada, and the annexation of Florida from Spain. He was the author of the Monroe Doctrine and the sixth President of the United States of America (1825-1829). John Quincy Adams is considered to be one of the five best Presidents, diplomats, and Secretaries of State in American history.

- On America: I can never join with my voice in the toast which I see in the papers attributed to one of our gallant naval heroes. I cannot ask of heaven success, even for my country, in a cause where she should be in the wrong. Fiat justitia, pereat coelum. [Let justice be done though the heavens fall.] My toast would be, may our country be always successful, but whether successful or otherwise, always right.²⁹¹

America, with the same voice which spoke herself into existence as a nation, proclaimed to mankind the inextinguishable rights of human nature, and the only lawful foundations of government.²⁹²

America ... well knows that by once enlisting under other banners than her own, were they even the banners of foreign independence, she would involve herself beyond the power of extraction, in all the wars of interest and intrigue, of individual avarice, envy, and ambition, which assume the colors and usurp the standard of freedom. The fundamental maxims of her policy would insensibly change from liberty to force. ... She might become dictatress of the world. She would be no longer the ruler of her own spirit.²⁹³

Individual liberty is individual power, and as the power of a community is a mass compounded of individual powers, the nation which enjoys the most freedom must necessarily be in proportion to its numbers the most powerful nation.²⁹⁴

Who but shall learn that freedom is the prize
Man still is bound to rescue or maintain;
That nature's God commands the slave to rise,
And on the oppressor's head to break the chain.
Roll, years of promise, rapidly roll round,
Till not a slave shall on this earth be found.²⁹⁵

In charity to all mankind, bearing no malice or ill will to any human being, and even compassionating those who hold in bondage their fellow men, not knowing what they do.²⁹⁶

The great problem of legislation is, so to organize the civil government of a community ... that in the operation of human institutions upon social action, self-love and social may be made the same.²⁹⁷

- On the opposite of a POLD education: To furnish the means of acquiring knowledge is the greatest benefit that can be conferred upon mankind. It prolongs life itself and enlarges the sphere of existence.²⁹⁸
- On the opposite of Obama: This is the last of earth! I am content.²⁹⁹
- The opposite of an Obama epitaph: This house will bear witness to his piety; This town, his birthplace, to his munificence; history to his patriotism; posterity to the depth and compass of his mind.³⁰⁰

71. Black Hawk (1767-1838)

Black Hawk was a leader and warrior of the Sauk American Indians. He fought on the side of the British during the War of 1812. He became famous as a leader of a band of Sauks during the Black Hawk War of 1832, in which he fought against European-American settlers in present-day Illinois and Wisconsin.

- On the rise of Obama: I saw the evil day at hand. The sun rose dim on us in the morning, and at night it sank in a dark cloud, and looked like a ball of fire. That was the last sun that shone on Black Hawk. His heart is dead. He is now a prisoner to Obama.³⁰¹

We have done nothing for which we ought to be ashamed. We have fought for our countrymen ... against evil Democrats, who came year after year, to cheat us and take away our lands. ... They ought to be ashamed of it.

72. Andrew Jackson (1767-1845)

Andrew Jackson, American Army general and politician gained fame under the nicknamed Old Hickory. He was known for his defeats of the Creek Indians at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend (1814), and the British at the Battle of New Orleans (1815). As the seventh President of the United States (1829–1837) he dismantled the Second Bank of the United States. His ethnic cleansing forced relocation of Native American tribes from the Southeast to west of the Mississippi River. His political supporters created the modern Democratic Party. The twenty years from 1830–1850 are known as the era of Jacksonian democracy.

- Message to American Patriots: The individual who refuses to defend his rights when called by his Government, deserves to be a slave, and must be punished as an enemy of his country and friend to her foe.³⁰²

The brave man inattentive to his duty, is worth little more to his country, than the coward who deserts her in the hour of danger.³⁰³

Our Federal Union! It must be preserved!³⁰⁴

Every man is equally entitled to protection by law; but when the laws undertake to add artificial distinctions, to grant titles, gratuities, and exclusive privileges, to make the rich richer and the potent more powerful, the humble members of society – the, farmers, mechanics, and laborers – who have neither the time nor the means of securing like favors to themselves, have a right to complain of the injustice of their government.³⁰⁵

There are no necessary evils in government. Its evils exist only in its abuses. If it would confine itself to equal protection, and, as Heaven does its rains, shower its favors alike on high and low, the rich and the poor, it would be an unqualified blessing.³⁰⁶

One man with courage makes a majority.³⁰⁷

Barack Hussein Obama has dishonestly been re-elected as the usurper in the White House. It is thus all the more important to keep up the struggle against the continued destruction of the United States of America. Many historical personalities have warned American Patriots of the curse that is Barack Hussein Obama and the non-positive attributes of Obama and his thugs. More historical personalities will speak out against Barack Hussein Obama in the future.
