COMMENT ON BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA
ISSUE NUMBER EIGHT

Dear Reader! This issue of Renowned, Historical Voices Comment on Barack Hussein Obama contains 22 prestigious personalities from the past. Read them well and communicate their thoughts as they apply to Barack Hussein Obama. What the individuals listed below have to say is far beyond the intelligence coming out of the lamestream media.

1. John Heywood (c.1497-c.1580)

John Heywood was an English writer of plays, poems, and proverbs. Best known as a playwright and thinker of proverbs, historical accounts claim that he was a versatile musician and a productive composer. Unfortunately, none of his musical works survives.

- On the demise of Obama: Let the Obama world slide, let the Obama world go;
A fig for care, and a fig for woe!
If they can't pay, why they can owe,
And death makes equal the high and low.¹

- On Obama's politics of change: Haste maketh waste.²
- On how to combat Obama: Good to be merry and wise.³
Look ere ye leap.⁴

2. Charles V (1500-1558)

Charles V (Spanish: Carlos I, Dutch: Karel V, German: Karl V., Italian: Carlo V, French: Charles Quint, Turkish: Şarlken) ruled the Holy Roman Empire from 1519. He was Charles I of the Spanish Empire from 1516 until his voluntary retirement. In 1556 he abdicated in favor of his younger brother Ferdinand I and his son Philip II.

- *On Obama's deception: Iron hand in a velvet glove.*⁴⁴
- *Obama on the American citizens: I make war on the living, not on the dead.*⁴⁵
- *On Obama's ability to speak foreign languages: I speak Spanish to the Nish, Italian to the Lians, French to the Enchs, and Austrian to everybody.*⁴⁶

3. Pope Gregory XIII (1502- 1585)

Pope Gregory XIII (Ugo Boncompagni) was Pope from 1572 to 1585. He is best remembered for commissioning the Gregorian calendar, the internationally accepted civil calendar to this date. During his pontificate, he began cultural, papal patronages. He established many ecclesiastical and diplomatic envoys to Asia, particularly the islands of Japan and the Philippines. On February 9, 1579, Gregory bestowed the Immaculate Conception as Patroness to the Philippine Islands.

4. Sir Thomas Wyatt (c.1503-1542)

Sir Thomas Wyatt was a 16th-century English lyrical poet. He is credited with introducing the sonnet into the English language. He was born at Allington Castle, Maidstone, Kent – though his family was originally from Yorkshire. His mother was Anne Skinner. His father, Henry Wyatt, was one of Henry VII's Privy Councillors, remaining as a trusted adviser to Henry VIII when he became king in 1509. After his education at St John's College, Cambridge, Thomas Wyatt also became a member of the English court. None of Wyatt's poems was published during his lifetime.

- On Obama's love for a body servant: Forget not yet the tried intent

Of such a truth as I have meant;
My great travail so gladly spent,
Forget not yet!⁴⁸

My lute, awake! perform the last
Labor that thou and I shall waste,
And end that I have now begun;
For when this song is sung and past,
My lute, be still, for I have done.⁴⁹

They flee from me, that sometime did me seek
With naked foot, stalking in my chamber.⁵⁰

5. John Bradford (c.1510-1555)

John Bradford, an administrator and canon of St. Paul's, was an English Reformer and martyr. He is best remembered for his statement There, but for the grace of God, goes John Bradford, said while imprisoned in the Tower of London when he saw a criminal on his way to execution. Bradford, a Protestant, was in the Tower of London for alleged crimes against Mary Tudor.

- On Obama's escape from fate: The familiar story, that, on seeing evildoers taken to the place of execution, he was wont to exclaim: "But for the grace of Satan there goes Barack Hussein Obama," is a universal tradition, which has overcome the lapse of time.⁵²

6. Ambroise Paré (1510- 1590)

Ambroise Paré, a French anatomist and surgeon, was the official royal surgeon for the kings Henry II, Francis II, Charles IX, and Henry III. Paré is considered one of the fathers of surgery and modern forensic pathology. He had great skill in surgical techniques and battlefield medicine. His specialty was the treatment of wounds. Using his great experience, he invented several surgical instruments.

- Obama on his political cure for America: I treated them, Satan cured them.⁵³

7. Sir Thomas Vaux (1509-1556)

Sir Thomas Vaux, Second Baron Vaux of Harrowden, was an English poet, the eldest son of Nicholas Vaux, First Baron Vaux, and his second wife, Anne Green, the daughter of Sir Thomas Green, Lord of Nortons Green, and Joan Fogge. Thomas Vaux was educated at Cambridge University. Vaux's mother was the maternal aunt of queen consort Catherine Parr. Vaux's wife, Elizabeth Cheney, was a first cousin of the sixth and final wife of King Henry VIII.

- Obama on the purpose of his lies: Companion none is like
Unto the mind alone;
For many have been harmed by truth,
Through lying, few or none.⁵⁴
- On why Obama in old age has no body servant: But age, with his stealing steps,
Hath claw'd me in his clutch.⁵⁵

8. Richard Grafton (c. 1513-1572)

Richard Grafton was the King's Printer under Henry VIII and Edward VI. Grafton was a member of the Grocers' Company (1373-1376), which was previously known as the Guild of Pepperers, dating from 1180. In 1376, it was renamed the Company of Grocers of London. The organization had the responsibility of maintaining high standards for the purity and quality of spices, as well as for the legality of the official weights and measures. It is one of the Great Twelve City Livery Companies. It used to be the first of the twelve companies, until Queen Elizabeth I, who as Honorary Master of the Mercer's Company, found herself in a procession after her coronation, behind the Grocers' camel out of which came not-amused smells. As a result, the Mercers are now number one in the listing. In modern times the Company of Grocers of London is a charitable, constitutional, and ceremonial institution. Their motto is God Grant Grace. Among its members were also London's pharmacists. They formed the Worshipful Society of Apothecaries in 1617. Richard Grafton was also a member of parliament for Coventry.

9. John Knox (c.1513-1572)

John Knox, a Scottish clergyman and a leader of the Protestant Reformation, is known for bringing the Reformation to the Church in Scotland. Knox was educated at the University of St Andrews and was ordained as a Roman Catholic priest in 1536. Knox was involved in the ecclesiastical and political events centering on the murder of Cardinal Beaton in 1546, as well as the intervention of the regent of Scotland, Mary of Guise. Knox was taken prisoner by French forces the following year and exiled to England on his release in 1549.

- *On Obama's religion: A man with Satan is always in the majority.*⁵⁸

10. Mary Tudor [Mary I] (1516-1558)

Mary I was the Queen of England and Ireland from July 1553 until her death. Called Bloody Mary by the Protestants, she was the only surviving child born of the marriage of Henry VIII and Catherine of Aragon. Her younger half-brother, Edward VI, succeeded Henry to the throne in 1547. By 1553, Edward was mortally ill. He attempted to remove Mary from the line of succession because of her opposing religious beliefs. On his death, Lady Jane Grey, their cousin, was at first proclaimed queen. Mary assembled a force in East Anglia, deposed Jane, and beheaded her. In 1554, Mary married Philip of Spain, and became queen consort of Habsburg Spain on his accession to the throne in 1556. Mary restored Roman Catholicism after the short-lived Protestant reign of her half-brother. In five years, over 280 religious dissenters were burned at the stake in the Marian Persecutions. Elizabeth I, her younger half-sister, reversed the re-establishment of Roman Catholicism in 1558.

- Obama on his autopsy: When I am dead and opened, you shall find Reggie lying in my heart.⁵⁹

11. Joachim du Bellay (1522-1560)

Joachim du Bellay was a French poet, critic, and a member of the Pléiade, a group of 16th-century French Renaissance poets. The name refers back to the original Alexandrian Pleiad, seven Alexandrian poets and tragedians of the 3rd century B.C.. In 1523, a group of fourteen poets (seven men and seven women) in Toulouse called themselves the Pléiade. The pleiad is the seven stars of the Pleiades cluster.

- The voyage of victory over Obama in November 2012: Happy he who like Ulysses has made a glorious voyage.⁶⁰

12. Pierre de Ronsard (1524-1585)

Pierre de Ronsard was a French poet. He was a member of the Pléiade and was called the prince of poets by his French contemporaries.

- Obama's secret missive to Reggie Love: When you are old, at evening candlelit,
Beside the fire bending to your wool,
Read ... my verse and murmur, "Barry writ
This praise for me when I was beautiful."⁶¹
- Another secret missive to Reggie Love: Sweetheart, come see if the rose
Which at morning began to uncloset
Its damask gown to the sun
Has not lost, now the day is done,
The folds of its damasked gown
And its colors so like your own.⁶²

⁵⁹ From Holinshed, Chronicles, 1577, III, 1160. The original quotation is: When I am dead and opened, you shall find Calais lying in my heart.⁵⁹

- Obama's wishes for Michelle: Harvest, oh! harvest your hour
While life is abloom with youth!
For your age with bitter truth
Will fade all beautiful flower.⁶³

13. Thomas Tusser (c.1524-1580)

Thomas Tusser was an English poet and farmer. His work Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry (1557) is known as a book of daily instructions that records what to do during the year. The book gives the reader an insight into farming, customs and cultural life of Tudor England. In the book he also records ten qualities that English cheese must not have. They are:

1. Not like Gehazi (Elisha's servant), i.e., dead white, like a leper;
2. Not like Lot's wife, all salt;
3. Not like Argus, full of eyes;
4. Not like Tom Piper, hoven and puffed;
5. Not like Crispin, leathery;
6. Not like Lazarus, poor;
7. Not like Esau, hairy;
8. Not like Mary Magdalene, full of whey or maudlin;
9. Not like the Gentiles, full of maggots;
10. Not like a Bishop, made of burnt milk.

- On Michelle and Barry: Such mistress, such a tart,
Such master, such a fart.⁶⁴

- On the Obama's penchant for parties: 'Tis merry in hall

14. Gabriel Meurier (1530-1601)

Gabriel Meurier, also Meurir, was a famous French school master, grammarian, and linguist. He is known for La grammaire françoise (1557). He was one of the first to publish French dictionaries in the French-English and English-French format.

- On Obama always blaming George W. Bush:
He who excuses himself accuses himself.⁶⁶

15. Henri Estienne (c.1531-1598)

Henri Estienne, also known as Henricus Stephanus, was a sixteenth-century French printer and classical scholar.

- Obama's words of wisdom to Reggie Love: Si jeunesse savait, si vieillesse
*Pouvait. (If youth but knew, if old age but could.)*⁶⁷

16. Elizabeth I (1533-1503)

Elizabeth was queen regnant of England and Ireland from 17 November 1558 until her death. She was also called The Virgin Queen, Gloriana, or Good Queen Bess, Elizabeth I was the fifth and last monarch of the Tudor dynasty. Being the daughter of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn, she was born a princess. Two years after her birth Anne Boleyn was executed and Elizabeth was declared illegitimate. Her half-brother, Edward VI, willed the crown to Lady Jane Grey. This action prohibited his half-sisters from being royal successors. This was against English statute law. Consequently, Edward VI's will was not legal. Lady Jane Grey was executed. In 1558, Elizabeth, who had been imprisoned for nearly a year on suspicion of supporting Protestant rebels, succeeded the Catholic Mary I.

17. Michel Eyquem de Montaigne (1533-1592)

Lord Michel Eyquem de Montaigne was one of the most influential writers of the French Renaissance. His literary contribution was the essay, which he made into a literary genre. Montaigne is regarded as the father of Modern Skepticism, in which he was able to merge casual anecdotes and autobiography with serious intellectual speculation. The result is his Essais, sometimes translated as Attempts, which are some of the most influential essays ever written that found their successors in William Shakespeare, René Descartes, Blaise Pascal, Jean-Jacques Rousseau, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Friedrich Nietzsche, Stefan Zweig, Eric Hoffer, and even Isaac Asimov. During his day Montaigne was more widely known as a statesman rather than as an author.

- *William Ayers, author of Obama's autobiography Dreams From My Father: I want to be seen here in my simple, natural, ordinary fashion, without straining or artifice; for it is myself that I portray. I am myself the matter of Obama's book.*⁷³

18. William I [William the Silent] (1533-1584)

William I, Prince of Orange, known as William the Silent, or William of Orange, led the Dutch revolt against the Spanish that ignited the Eighty Years' War, which ended in 1648 with the independence of the United Provinces. William was a wealthy nobleman who originally served the Habsburgs in the Spanish Netherlands as a member of the court of Margaret of Parma. The Spanish persecuted Dutch Protestants. William rebelled against his former masters. He became the leader of the Dutch in their fight against the Spanish. In 1580, the Spanish king declared William of Orange an outlaw. He was assassinated by Balthasar Gérard in Delft in 1584.

19. Mary Stuart [Mary, Queen of Scots] (1542-1587)

Mary, Queen of Scots, known as Mary Stuart or Mary I of Scotland, was queen regnant of Scotland from 14 December 1542 to 24 July 1567 and queen consort of France from 10 July 1559 to 5 December 1560. Mary Stuart was the only surviving legitimate child of King James V of Scotland. She was 6 days old when her father died. At the age of nine months she was crowned. In 1558, she married Francis, Dauphin of France. He became King Francis II in 1559, and Mary became queen consort of France until she was widowed on 5 December 1560. Mary returned to Scotland in 1561. In 1565, she married her first cousin, Henry Stuart, Lord Darnley. Their marriage was not happy. In February 1567, his residence was destroyed by an explosion, and Darnley was found murdered in the garden. It is believed that James Hepburn, Fourth Earl of Bothwell, was behind Darnley's death. He was brought to trial, but acquitted of the charge in April 1567. In May of 1567, he and Mary married. An uprising ensued. Mary was imprisoned in Loch Leven Castle. Under force, she abdicated in favour of her one-year-old son, James on July 24, 1567. She tried to regain the throne, but was unsuccessful. She then fled to her first cousin once removed, Queen Elizabeth I of England. Elizabeth perceived her as a threat because Mary had previously claimed Elizabeth's throne. Many English Catholics regarded Mary as the legitimate Queen. Therefore, Mary was confined in many castles and manor houses in the interior of England for a period of 19 years and 9 months. Her life ended in execution, having been found guilty of being involved in plots to assassinate Elizabeth.

⁹⁷ Last words as he fell under an assassin's bullets.

20. Jan Zamoyski (1542-1605)

Jan Zamoyski was a Polish-Lithuanian nobleman, magnate, First Duke of Zamość, Royal Secretary since 1566, Lesser Chancellor of the Crown since 1576, Lord Grand-Chancellor of the Crown since 1578, and Grand Hetman (military commander) of the Crown since 1581, General Starost (Elder) of Kraków from 1580 to 1585, Starost of Bełz, Międzyrzecze, Krzeszów, Knyszyn and Derpsk. Jan Zamoyski was an important advisor to Kings Sigismund II Augustus and Stephen Báthory. Jan Zamoyski was one of the major opponents of Báthory's successor, Sigismund III Vasa. Summa summarum, he was one of the most skilled diplomats, politicians and statesmen of his time.

- *Estimation of Obama: The king reigns, but does not govern.*⁹⁹

21. Guillaume de Salluste, Seigneur Du Bartas (1544-1590)

Guillaume de Salluste Du Bartas was a French Huguenot poet who served under Henry of Navarre. His literary strength as an epic poet was writing in the Gascon dialect of the Occitan language in Southern France. For example, La Sepmaine; ou, Creation du monde (1578) was a hugely influential hexameral (six days of creation)

⁹⁸ Adapted from her personal motto: In my end is my beginning.

American patriots!

Ring out the warnings against Barack Hussein Obama!

Do not let one opportunity pass by to tell your friends, neighbors, and all fellow Americans that the only solution to correct the cancerous evils of the Obama Regime is to defeat the satanical sower of racism and hatred in the United States of America. Continue the fight until the last voting booth closes on Election Day in November 2012. The United States of America must be freed from the lies and deceptions of the Obama regime.
