THE BULLY

PREVIEW: Minutes before the beginning of the Conference on Bullying Prevention.

Barack Hussein Obama: "Mirror, Mirror on the wall. Who is the most famous bully of them all?"

Answer from the Mirror: "Barack Hussein Obama, you are the most famous bully of them all! You break every law in the United States of America! You INSULT the citizens and the United States of America at every opportunity. You bullied your way into the Oval Office, now known as the Office of Bull. You blame all of what is going wrong in your regime on former President George W. Bush! You blame every mistake you make on someone else in order to achieve your goals! You insult Israel at every opportunity. You insult the British and all of America's allies, including new allies that were once member countries of the former communist bloc. It's all about you! You are the idea! You are the way! You are the truth, the best falsified truth that ever was and will ever be! You are the personification of greatestness! If the sheeple of America do not like your politics, you will bully them until they do, because you are the most omnipotent bully who ever lived!"

(Elated with this answer Barack Hussein Obama turns and faces away from the mirror on the wall. While he is on his way to the East Room, the mirror cracks and shambles of glass fall out of the frame.)

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

This author is emphatically against bullying. This essay is not a process in bullying. It is a caustic, critical presentation of Barack Hussein Obama and his double-faced attitude on bullying. On the one hand, Barack Hussein Obama is against bullying. On the other hand, Barack Hussein Obama is a skilled bully, someone who Saul Alinsky, an American community organizer with no sense of ethics, would be proud of! At the same time, the author finds it interesting that the recent increase in bullying behavior with one's age peers, and those who do not belong to the political gang (or any other gang) come from regions and school districts in the United States of America that have been active hot beds and bastions of leftism since the 1960s. It is this author's opinion that leftist, educational philosophy has absolutely failed to convey the meaning of respect for one's fellow citizen, youth or adult, that was such an important part of American character identity before the rise of the leveling politicians, progressives, and leftist teachers.

Leftist teachers are not educators. If they were educators, they would know that maintaining a country's historical values and instilling these values in the schools and homes is the pre-requisite for the youth to behave morally and properly. Moreover, they would know that to educate the youth, to lead them forth into the adult world, would provide them with the foundation upon which they could build their lives and become moral, patriotic, respected American citizens.

On Thursday, March 10, 2011, Barack Hussein Obama and his wife Michelle Obama along with representatives from the United States Department of Education and the Department of Health and Human Services held a conference on bullying at the White House. It was attended by students (really pupils), parents, and teachers (not educators).

The conference supposedly brought American communities that have been affected by bullying from all over the United States of America together. Those who have fought against bullying are a larger part of this great community of family that is the United States of America. This is what the bully Barack Hussein Obama believes.

Firstly, the statement, especially that there is one great American family, is crap! There is no American communal family in the United States of America. Americans are not yet communists! Secondly, the scene portrayed a grotesque exercise. The two most well-known bullies in the United States of America, the king of megalomania Barack Hussein Obama and his quean of megalomania, Michelle Obama, supported by their sub-bullies, were riding control over the selected, American sheeple who were present, as well as those sheeple who watched the staging via television, video, iPhone, or whatever, and who heard the performance over the radio waves. Thirdly, the bully in chief, Barack Hussein Obama, is a state-of-the-art contradiction of the anti-bullying position he takes.

It is apparent that the bully in chief talked about bullying. Barack Hussein Obama claimed that he had been bullied as a child. However, given the fact that Barack Hussein Obama tells lies as truths and tells truths as lies, the problems that Barack Hussein Obama had with bullying in his childhood were not because he was bullied. The problems were most likely because he was the bully!

In order to understand Barack Hussein Obama's coercive, threatening, intimidating behavior vis-à-vis his official anti-bullying position, it is necessary to understand what the word bully means. The reader will come to realize that Barack-The-Bully-Hussein-The-Bully Obama is nothing more than the personification of what he is supposedly opposing.

SECTION ONE

ETYMOLOGY, HISTORY, AND USES OF BULLY

There is no definitive Indo-Germanic (European) word stem for the word bully. The indications without surety point to the possibility that bhel-² meaning to blow, to swell could be the word root of bully.¹ There are variant derivatives referring to roundness and above all, there are references to tumescent masculinity, a swelling masculinity that arises in the form of a macho, or someone eager to show his phallic capabilities either by the sexual act, or by the transposing of the man's own conceived greatness into his day-to-day associations in which he attempts to show, coerce, and force others to do something; like in the case of Barack Hussein Obama pressuring people to invoke a certain kind of politics. In this sense we do find a connection with swelling: Barack Hussein Obama never lets a situation go by in which he is not the center of attraction and therefore swells up the collected happening. At the same time there is a connection to a transposed phallic activity. The Greek word phallus derives from the Indo-Germanic (European) word stem bhel-². A man's phallic greatness must not necessarily mean the man's sexual penetrating prowess. It can also convey the meaning that the man's sexual capabilities of penetration are transformed in such a manner that the result is that those in his gang will do exactly what he wants because they are absolutely knowledgeable of his coercive, penetrating capabilities. Of course, Barack Hussein Obama wants the relationship this way and he will go to all ends to make sure that this relationship is ever present. It is as if the physiognomy of Barack Hussein Obama pierces and penetrates his associates. As such Barack Hussein Obama bullies others to do what he wants them to do.

We investigate and find the following meanings of bully, all of which can be connected to Barack Hussein Obama and his method of achieving his goals.² Concurrently, the reader will be presented with an example of how the respective meanings are concretely applied to Barack Hussein Obama. Thus the reader will become aware of the fact that the word bully in all of its meanings is none other than part and parcel of the narcissistic personality disorder of Barack Hussein Obama. Without the bully aspect of his being, Barack Hussein Obama would not be able to live! Bullying is all about him! It may be that he needs to bully because he is so full of bull.

A. Definitions

bully (noun)

1. A person who teases or hurts the weak; a person who is habitually cruel to smaller or weaker people. This meaning was known by 1688 and was probably extracted from related earlier words such as bully boy (1609), in which bully has the positive meaning of good friend, fine fellow. In the 1650s it changes to bully ruffian and by 1680 to bullyhuffa, a boaster who bullies. The term bully roister meaning a swaggering reveler comes into the English language in 1687.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Bully Barack Hussein Obama has hurt the poor and the weak in a number of ways. Paramount are the following two examples:³

- a. "The $26 billion bailout of the teachers' unions that Obama recently signed into law in 2010. Not only was the money taken from food stamp programs for poor Americans in order to fund Democrat special interests, a portion will be skimmed off the top as union dues and funneled to Democrat political campaigns this fall (2010)."

- b. "Lying to the American people by promising they could keep their healthcare coverage if they wanted to, when in reality tens of millions will be forced out of their current plans.

2. Archaic. A hired ruffian. The bully ruffian noted above (1650s)

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Bully Barack Hussein Obama is a hired ruffian of George Soros. Both of them have the intent to destroy the United States of America and transform it into a socialist/communist creation.⁴

3. Obsolete. A pimp. This type of bully was a protector and exploiter of prostitutes in circa 1690 and remained as such until circa 1750 at which time it became Standard English. Daniel Defoe (1660/61-1731) in his Jure Divino (1706) wrote:

Mars the celestial bully they adore

And Venus for an everlasting whore.⁵

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: If we consider that those Obots, leftists, progressives, and union thugs who bully activate for their chief bully Barack Hussein Obama as non-sexual prostitutes, and that they provide their abilities or names for an unworthy, immoral cause, then Barack Hussein Obama can be considered to be their pimp.

4. Using the word bully as a scrimmage became known in Eaton football playing and was recorded in 1850. In this sense it is now Standard English.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Barack Hussein did a lot of political scrimmaging to try and cut social security and raise the age requirements for social security. He did the same with ObamaCare.⁶

5. Obsolete. A fine fellow. A companion, a mate became the meaning by circa 1820, particularly with respect to nautical associations and English dialect use.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: There is no nautical association with Bully Barack Hussein Obama. However, there is the fine fellow, companion, mate connection with his bosom friend, basketball czar, and possible homosexual lover Reggie Love, Barack Hussein Obama's body man.⁷ Bully Barack Hussein Obama assuredly was a fine fellow and mate of other homosexuals like Donald Young, Larry Bland, Nate Spencer, and Larry Sinclair,⁸ to say nothing of Bully Barack Hussein Obama being a (lifetime?) member of Chicago's Gay Man's Club.⁹ As such the meaning is no longer obsolete. It is having its rise!

Of course, Obots, progressives, leftists and union thugs would consider Bully Barack Hussein Obama as a fine fellow and he would consider them to be fine fellows in return. But he would never be in such a relationship with Republicans or those opposing his opinions and politics like Alan Keyes, LTC Allen West, and LTC Terence Lakin.

6. Obsolete. A sweetheart. In this sense bully was originally meant sweetheart and darling, the use of which was often employed by William Shakespeare. It is most probably from Middle Dutch boel(e), meaning lover, brother, which is probably a diminutive form of the Middle High German buole, meaning brother, itself of an uncertain origin, but probably coming from lover, e.g., the Middle High German buok, sweetheart, circa the 1530s and originally applied to both males and females. It is most likely of baby-talk origin. The meaning of lover, sweetheart began to deteriorate in the seventeenth century from fine fellow; to blusterer, used by William Shakespeare in A Lover's Complaint, to refer to someone who shouts loudly and threatens; to become harasser of the weak by the 1680s, which comes from the compound noun form bully-ruffian, occurring in the 1650s.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Bully meaning sweetheart is obviously associated with the application described above regarding Bully Barack Hussein Obama's gay relationships.

Bully as meaning harasser of the weak who shouts loudly is applied to Bully Barack Hussein Obama in his attempts to shout out his opponents. Bully Barack

Hussein Obama and his Obots, whether progressives, leftists, or union thugs always undertake the proven policy of harassing political opponents.¹⁰

There are at least fifty impeachable crimes that constitute harassment of the American Constitution, the American citizen, and the United States of America.¹¹

Moreover, Organizing for America, the so-called grassroots organization that supports Bully Barack Hussein Obama's agenda for changing the American system into a socialist/communist regime system is a shouting-out aimed to destroy the freedoms of Americans and their constitutional guarantees. The reader must also consider the phases in his speeches when he raises his voice and begins to shout, just like Adolf Hitler did when he was the leader of the Third Reich and the Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei (the National Socialistic German Workers Party). The reader should not forget the adage that people who shout are in the wrong and lie when they shout. There are more Barack Hussein Obama and Adolf Hitler comparisons than the reader thinks. There are so many that one would think that Barack Hussein Obama is the evil reincarnation of Adolf Hitler.¹²

to bully (verb)

1. As a transitive verb bullied, -lying, -lies we have the following definition: to intimidate with superior size or strength, occurring about 1710. In connection with the word rag, i.e., the transitive verb bully rag assumes the sense of to mistreat or intimidate by bullying or hazing. Thomas Warton (1728-1790) employed this usage in Oxford Newsman's Verses (1760). Its etymological source may come from the sense of to make a bully's rag of a person.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Bully Barack Hussein Obama bullied his way to the Oval Office, now the Office of Bull: "I won!"¹³ Bully Barack Hussein Obama bullied ObamaCare through the United States Congress via Nancy bully Pelosi, the former Speaker of the House of Representatives.

2. As an intransitive verb: to behave like a bully.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Just observe Bully Barack Hussein Obama's behavior. Any further explanation would be an insult to the reader's intelligence.

3. bully as an adjective (Informal)

a. excellent; very good; splendid.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Although his speeches are full of lies and historical inaccuracies, the lame stream media thinks that his speeches are bully (excellent, very good, splendid).¹⁴

b. dashing; gallant. In circa 1681, bully developed to mean worthy, admirable, out of the noun sense good fellow, which was often used as an attribute. It occurs very often in Shakespeare's plays, examples being bully Bottom and bully Doctor. Finally it was abstracted from these phrases and eventually came to mean worthy or admirable in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and applied only to persons. President Theodore Roosevelt's description of the presidency being a bully pulpit because of its power and prestige popularized this usage. It has been used in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand since circa 1860 to mean champion, first-rate. It is seldom if never used anymore in the United States of America in the sense that President Roosevelt (1858-1919) used the term

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: He is so bully (dashing and gallant) when he bows before other heads of state.¹⁵

Whether or not Bully Barack Hussein Obama recognizes the position he pudently occupies as a bully office is a mute question. He surely does not occupy the bully pulpit by speaking softly and carrying a big stick, which was the political adage adhered to by President Theodore Roosevelt. Barack Hussein Obama speaks only too boisterously and carries no stick unless he pulls the racism card as a stick!

4. bully as an interjection can be used to express approval.

Application to Barack Hussein Obama: Progressives, the left, union thugs, Obots, and all of those into Barack Hussein Obama so far that the sun does not shine think bully for him when he personally, in his verbose manner, attacks Sarah Palin and other opponents.

B. Compound Nouns and Phrases

Some compound nouns and phrases are listed below. All of them apply to Bully Barack Hussein Obama. It is recommended that the reader inform him/herself of Bully Barack Hussein Obama's background, which is completely presented in its full spectrum at The Obama Timeline.

1. The phrase bully about the muzzle means too thick and large in the mouth and originally applied to dogs.

COMMENT: However with some politicians like Barack Hussein Obama the phrase is quite adequate in describing his consistent lying.¹⁶

2. A bully-back means a brothel's bully and chuckerout, a bully who throws someone out of the brothel. A bully-back can also mean a bully supporting another person. These meanings were in use from the eighteenth century to the early nineteenth century.

COMMENT: This usage can be carried over in the sense of not throwing someone out of a brothel, but in the sense of throwing someone under the bus. This is one of Bully Barack Hussein Obama's favorite pastimes.¹⁷

3. The term bully-beef means boiled salt beef in the Navy and in the Army, tinned beef. This meaning enters the Standard English language in circa 1884.

COMMENT: One might want to ask, Where is the bully-beef in Bully Barack Hussein Obama's politics?

4. A bully-beggar is a solitary form of bullbeggar, which might be a corruption of bugbear. It was common from the eighteenth to early nineteenth century.

COMMENT: As a corruption of bugbear, we have the transposed implication that Bully Barack Hussein Obama is an evil goblin, something to be feared because it is evil.

5. The etymologist/linguist reconstruction bully-cock* (The asterisk means that the word has been reconstructed.) is one who foments quarrels in order to rob those who quarrel. This meaning occurs in the late eighteenth century and carries on into the early nineteenth century. If bully-cock* connotes a low, round, broad-brimmed hat, its orthography can be spelled billy-cock.

COMMENT: The word bully-cock as meaning a low, round, broad-brimmed hat does not apply. However bully-cock meaning one who foments quarrels in order to rob those who quarrel, is a typical Bully-Barack-Hussein-Obama-Saul-Alinsky ploy to get his opponents to argue so that he can step in with his so-called perfect solution, which in the end will make losers out of everyone except himself.

6. A bully fake is a low colloquial expression in London, bully meaning luck and fake meaning action, i.e., a lucky action.

COMMENT: Bully Barack Hussein Obama's bullying of the Constitution was indeed a bully fake because the American citizens and politicians do not know their Constitution. Neither did they care about his breaking of the Law of the Land, specifically Article II, Section 1, Clause 5. (The natural born citizen clause.)

7. A bully fop is a brainless, silly, talkative fellow. The term was used between circa 1680 and 1800.

COMMENT: This applies in no way to Bully Barack Hussein Obama, unless you are a logically thinking, morally upright, patriotic American. Then you will readily see that the term does apply.

8. The expression bully for you! reached England circa 1870 after having enjoyed a phenomenal vogue in the United States of America in 1864-1866.

COMMENT: Union thugs, leftists, Obots, and progressives say this to Bully Barack Hussein Obama when he trounces his opponents.

9. A bully huff-cap had the colloquial meaning in the eighteenth century of a boasting bully, a hector, originating from bully-huff in the late seventeenth century to the eighteenth century, particularly British English.

COMMENT: If anyone boasts about himself, it is the bully narcissist Barack Hussein Obama!

10. A bully-rock or bully-rook meant a boon companion from the late sixteenth century to the eighteenth century. William Shakespeare used this sense often in his plays. A bully-rock or bully-rook was used in low, colloquial English language to mean a hired ruffian or a boisterous, hectoring fellow.

COMMENT: Bully Barack Hussein Obama has been hired by George Soros. See A, number 2 above.

11. A bully ruffian was circa late seventeenth century to the eighteenth century a highwayman who when attacking spewed out curses on those whom he attacked.

COMMENT: No one attacks like Bully Barack Hussein Obama. No one spews out curses like he does. His complete political strategy is a curse on the United States of America.

12. A bully-trap was the opposite of the bully ruffian. The bully trap was a mild-looking man who was able to match any ruffian. The usage occurs in the early eighteenth century to the nineteenth century. From the seventeenth century to the early eighteenth century a bully-trap was a sharper, a cheat.

COMMENT: This change in meaning from bully trap meaning a mild-looking man who was able to match any ruffian to bully-trap as a sharper, a cheat is very applicable to Bully Barack Hussein Obama's character.

13. The common imperative form bully up still means to hurry.

COMMENT: Bully Barack Hussein Obama cannot bully up fast enough to change the United States of America into a socialist/communist system.

SYNONYMS OF BULLY

bully (noun) (25 synonyms) blusterer, browbeater, bulldozer (slang), coercer, cold, (Michelle as well) despot, dictator, fury (Michelle), hard taskmaster, hector, hellcat (Michelle), intimidator, oppressor, ranter, raver, roisterer, rowdy, ruffian, shrew (Michelle), Simon Legree, terror (informal), tough, tyrant, vaporor, vixen (Michelle).

to bully (verb) (49 words) abuse, bluff, bluster, browbeat, bulldoze, bullyrag, coerce, compel, cow, daunt, disconcert, dismay, domineer, dragoon, exact, frighten, harass, hector, intimidate, kick around (informal), lay down the law to (In the case of the Obamas, the word law cannot be used. It is more exact to say lay down their Saul Alinsky method.), lord it over, overawe, overbear, override, petrify, pull rank (informal), push around (informal), put the fear of the Lord into (The Obamas would most likely use Allah instead of the Lord.), rage, rant, rave, ride roughshod over, roister, scare, showboat (Although the synonym is slang, the Obamas try to make everything into a show.), storm, swagger, taunt, tease, terrify, terrorize, threaten, thunder, torment, trample, tread on, tyrannize, walk all over someone (Although the synonym is informal, the Obamas definitely do walk over anyone who is in their way.).

bully as an interjection (all informal) (7 words) All of these synonyms can be used to describe positive actions and negative actions. For example: Bully Barack. Your golf score was perfect. Right on (or any other from the list)! You really hit him in the face with your verbal attack, Bully Barack Hussein Obama! Right on (or any other from the list)!

boffo, good, great, neat, nifty, right on, well done.

The above synonyms fit Bully Barack Hussein Obama and Bully Michelle Obama. All of them fit Michelle Obama. With the exceptions where Michelle is noted: cold, fury, shrew, vixen, because they are female-oriented, they apply to Bully Barack Hussein Obama. In the same breath, a case could be made for the possibility that Bully Barack Hussein Obama is a heterosexual. If this is true, they all apply to his character.

SECTION TWO

CAUSTIC COMMENTARY

The following is a caustic commentary (in red) of the Remarks by the President and First Lady at the White House Conference on Bullying Prevention. The intent is to show the double standard of the Obamas on bullying: the leftists, progressives, union thugs, and Obots can bully, yet, at the same time the megalomaniac Obamas pretend to act as supreme, moral, up-lifters to the American sheeple who cannot eat the grass of freedom because the hounds are corralling them.

Remarks by the President and First Lady at the White House Conference on Bullying Prevention¹⁸

East Room

10:25 A.M. EST

Queen Megalomania, alias Mrs. Bully Michelle Obama:¹⁹

Good morning. (She is threatening the audience!) Thank you. (Another threat!) (Applause.) (The sheeple welcome the threats!) Everyone, please. (The politeness helps to disguise the real bully!) Good morning, (Repeat of the threat!) and welcome to the White House. (It was once the White House. It is now the Threat to America House, sometimes called the House of Bull!)

I want to thank all of you for joining us here today to discuss an issue of great concern to me and to Barack, not just as (bogus) President and as (bogus) First Lady, (Now that is a real threat!) but as a mom and a dad. And that is the problem of bullying in our schools and in our communities. (Bullying is not a problem when leftists, progressives, Obots, or union thugs do it!)

As parents, this issue really hits home for us. (Yes, a bully hits!) As parents, it breaks our hearts to think that any child feels afraid every day in the classroom, or on the playground, or even online. (It is impossible for them to have broken hearts because bullies do not have caring hearts.) It breaks our hearts to think about any parent losing a child to bullying, or just wondering whether their kids will be safe when they leave for school in the morning. (The word kid is informal slang and therefore a form of degradation! It can mean simple!) (Do not worry parents, the next step of Mr. and Mrs. Bully will be to nationalize private homes and public schools and rule out the existence of private homes and private schools.)

And as parents, Barack and I also know that sometimes, maybe even a lot of the time, it's really hard for parents to know what's going on in our kids' lives. (Mr. and Mrs. Bully do not realize what their children are experiencing because it is all about Bully Barack Hussein Obama and Bully Michelle Obama. Furthermore, if parents are real parents and not leftists, union thugs, Obots, or progressives, then they have no problem knowing what goes on in children's lives.)

We don't always know, because they don't always tell us every little detail. (Bullies cannot comprehend details!) We know that from Sasha. Sasha's response is -- "What happened at school today?" "Nothing." (Sasha attends a leftist, progressive school. Nothing happens and she receives high marks!) (Laughter.) (The sheeple love the Bully cracks!) That's it. It's like, well, we're taking you out of that school. (Typical leftist reaction. Sasha does nothing in school and the leftist bullies think Sasha is over worked.) (Laughter.) (The sheeple love the bully cracks!)

So as parents, we know we need to make a real effort to be engaged in our children's lives, to listen to them and be there for them when they need us. (Yes, that is what parents are supposed to do. However both of you are bullies. Responsible parents are never bullies.) We need to get involved in their schools and in their activities so that we know what they're up to, both in and out of the classroom. (The case is being made for the bully nationalization of schools.) And when something is wrong, we need to speak up, and we need to take action. (When patriotic American citizens speak up when something is wrong, i.e., LTC Terrence Lakin, your response is to bully them/him!)

That's just what Jacqui Knight did. She's a mom from Moore, Oklahoma, who's here with us today. (Mom is a short form of mamma, an alteration of mamma, as well as mommy. It is a child's term of endearment for the mother. Coming from Bully Michelle Obama, it is an insult! An insult is degrading. That is exactly what bullies do: they degrade!) We got a chance to spend some time with her before. (Before what? Before you degraded her to mom?) But when her child was bullied, she got together with other parents and planned community meetings where parents and students could share their stories. They also held meetings for the public to raise awareness about bullying. And they've been meeting with the school board and superintendent to discuss steps that they can take to keep their kids safe. (Three cheers for Mrs. Jacqui Knight. She has done more than Mr. and Mrs. Bully have done or will ever do!)

But parents aren't the only ones who have a responsibility. (That is correct. Progressives, leftists, Obots, and union thugs also have a responsibility.) We all need to play a role -- as teachers, coaches, as faith leaders (hypocritical), elected officials, and anyone who's involved in our children's lives. (Roles need not be played! Action needs to be taken! Yet, from Barack Hussein Obama will come no action, unless he is on a golf course somewhere! [Are there golf courses in Damnation?]) And that doesn't just mean working to change our kids' behavior and recognize and reward kids who are already doing the right thing. It means thinking about our own behavior as adults as well. (Okay, you Mrs. Bully, your husband, Mr. Bully, all of the Obots, union thugs, progressives, and leftists truly have a lot to think about. It will take all of you decades before 10 percent of what you have to think about is thought out! Then all of you will hit the streets at the first opportunity and say: "Bullying is evil. The Republicans bully constantly. We are peaceful. [Then you will continue your bullying.]")

We all know that when we, as adults, treat others with compassion and respect, when we take the time to listen and give each other the benefit of the doubt in our own adult lives, that sets an example for our children. (It should set an example for children. However, how can the example be set when the union thugs, the progressives, the leftists, the Obots, and Mr. and Mrs. Bully do not treat others with compassion and respect ... and give the benefit of the doubt?) It sends a message to our kids about how they treat others. (It surely does send a message to children: Listen to what I say, and then forget it!)

So we all have a lot of work to do in this country on this issue. (Mr. and Mrs. Bully never really worked a day in their lives. How can they tell they have a lot of work to do? More accurate is: You all have a lot of work to do!, but we won't work for you! We work against America!) And I hope that all of you, and everyone who is watching online, will walk away from this day, from this conference, with new ideas and solutions that you can all take back to your own schools and your own communities. (One solution would be not to follow the behavior of leftists, progressives, union thugs, Obots, and Mr. and Mrs. Bully, and to tell their parents to vote Republican in the next elections for at least three generations!) And I hope that all of us will step up and do our part to keep our kids safe, and to give them everything they need to learn and grow and fulfill their dreams. (It seems to Mrs. Bully that hope resides in the government nationalization of schools, with every teacher, not educator, being forced to become a member of a union!)

So with that, it is my pleasure to introduce this guy here -- (laughter [O how the sheeple love the quips!]) -- my husband and our (pp [putative president]) President, President Barack Obama. (Applause.) (The sheeple are enthralled!) (The word guy is informal and it is a word that means man, fellow. Originally it meant a grotesquely and poorly dressed (effigy of a) male person. Could it be that Mrs. Bully is telling the truth? The terminology comes from Guy Fawkes (1570-1606) who was the leader of the Gunpowder Plot in 1605. Guy Fawkes' goal was to blow up the English King, James I (1566, king from 1603-1625) and the English Parliament. Guy Fawkes was a traitor. Thus without knowing it, Bully Michelle is introducing Bully Barack as a traitor!)

THE (pp [putative president]) PRESIDENT: Thank you. (Coming from his mouth it sounds like a threat! When a bully says Thank You, that bully is looking into the future to see how one can be bullied.) (Applause.) (The sheeple react automatically.) Thank you, everybody. (Reiteration of a threat!) Thank you. (Reiteration of a threat!) Thank you, everybody. (Reiteration of a threat!) Thank you. (Reiteration of a threat!) Well, welcome to the White House. (Threat to America House, sometimes called the House of Bull!) I want to thank Michelle for her introduction, and for marrying me (Her threat came true! Bully Barack: Do what she says! You rely on women!)²⁰ -- (laughter) (The sheeple love it!) -- and for putting up with me. (She can do it only by making threats!)

I want to reiterate what Michelle said. Preventing bullying isn't just important to us as (bogus) President and (bogus) First Lady; it's important for us as parents -- something we care deeply about. (This is not a reiteration. It is a rephrasing!)

We're joined here by several members of Congress who've shown real leadership in taking up this cause. (They must be Republicans. Democrats threaten!) We've got a number of members of my administration with us today who are going to help us head up the efforts that come out of the White House on this issue. (It is not an administration. It is a bullying regime!) And I want to point out Judge Katherine O'Malley, the First Lady of Maryland. She is right here -- Katherine. (Applause.) (The sheeple react on command!) Thank you for being here. (Reiteration of a threat!) Thank you all for being here. (Reiteration of a threat!) You have a chance to make an enormous difference, and you already have. (A collective threat!)

Bullying isn't a problem that makes headlines every day. (Definitely not Barack Hussein Obama's kind of bullying, because the lame-stream media receives threats and therefore does not report it.) But every day it touches the lives of young people all across this country. I want to thank all of you for participating in this conference. But more importantly, I want to thank you for being part of what's a growing movement -- led by young people themselves -- to put a stop to bullying, whether it takes place in school or it's taking place online. (Are we to understand that Mr. Bully is being threatened by young people who want to stop bullying wherever it takes place? Even in Mr. Bully's regime?)

And that's why we're here today. If there's one goal of this conference, it's to dispel the myth that bullying is just a harmless rite of passage or an inevitable part of growing up. (Evidently, leftists, progressives, Obots, and union thugs are still in the process of growing up and to them bullying is not a myth.) It's not. Bullying can have destructive consequences for our young people. (And when leftists, progressives, Obots, and union thugs do it, it can result in death threats and wishes for murder.) And it's not something we have to accept. (Progressives, leftists, Obots, and union thugs accept it as a viable method to get their political programs legitimized.) As parents and students, as teachers and members of the community, we can take steps -- all of us -- to help prevent bullying and create a climate in our schools in which all of our children can feel safe; a climate in which they all can feel like they belong. (It smacks of laying the foundation for the nationalization of schools.)

As adults, we all remember what it was like to see kids picked on in the hallways or in the schoolyard. And I have to say, with big ears and the name that I have, I wasn't immune. (This is definitely a situation of al taqqiyya, the saying, or doing of anything to promote your goal. What Mr. Bully is contending is 99.9 percent false. When he went to school he had the name Barry Soetoro. As a child his ears were not as large as they are now. They got larger the more he became infatuated with himself: the narcissus complex!) (Laughter.) (The sheeple love the quips.) I didn't emerge unscathed. (This is possibly another falsity. How can we tell? We know nothing about his childhood. None of these experiences were reported in his (Bill Ayers') book Dreams from My Father.) But because it's something that happens a lot, and it's something that's always been around, (The history of public schools shows that bullying in public schools is closely connected to progressive, leftist educational theories, for such theories do not educate in morality, responsibility, respect, honor, and patriotism.) sometimes we've turned a blind eye to the problem. (The bully rhetorical genius has made a faux pas in logic! If the eye was blind, then the situation was not seen and therefore there was no need to turn the blind eye.) We've said, "Kids will be kids." And so sometimes we overlook the real damage that bullying can do, especially when young people face harassment day after day, week after week. (But now as America's two most famous bullies, you still do not know the real damage bullying can do, or do you?)

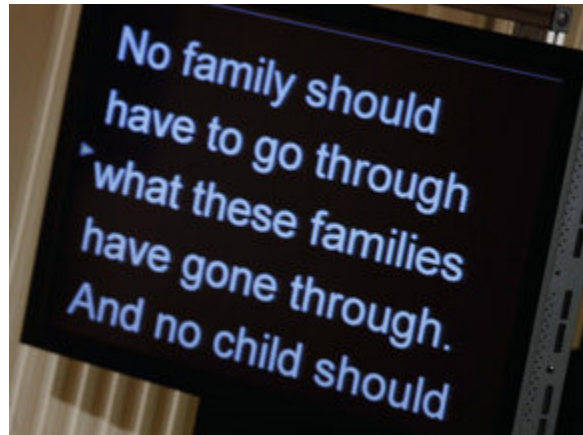

So consider these statistics. A third of middle school and high school students have reported being bullied during the school year. Almost 3 million students have said they were pushed, shoved, tripped, even spit on. (They must be children of Republican parents and those doing the bullying are definitely of leftist-progressive-Obot-union Democrat stock.) It's also more likely to affect kids that are seen as different, whether it's because of the color of their skin, the clothes they wear, the disability they may have, or sexual orientation. (Does Mr. Bully mean that those who bully do so because they are seen as different, whether it's because of the color of their skin, the clothes they wear, the disability they may have, or their sexual orientation?)

And bullying has been shown to lead to absences and poor performance in the classroom. (Evidently it also leads to voting present!) And that alone should give us pause, since no child should be afraid to go to school in this country. (Leftist-oriented educational philosophy and leftist lesson plans are plenty of good reasons why children should be afraid to go to school!)

Today, bullying doesn't even end at the school bell -- it can follow our children from the hallways to their cell phones to their computer screens. (Solution: get rid of the cell phones, get rid of the personal computer. And do what the Bully regime is doing, get rid of freedom!) And in recent months, a series of tragedies has drawn attention to just how devastating bullying can be. We have just been heartbroken by the stories of young people who endured harassment and ridicule day after day at school, and who ultimately took their own lives. (Impossible. Mr. and Mrs. Bully do not have caring hearts. Bullies do not have caring hearts!) These were kids brimming with promise -- kids like Ty Field, kids like Carl Walker-Hoover -- who should have felt nothing but excitement for the future. Instead, they felt like they had nowhere to turn, as if they had no escape from taunting and bullying that made school something they feared. I want to recognize Ty's mom and dad who are here today; (Mom is a child's appellation for mother. Coming from Mr. Bully it is an insult!) Carl's mother and sister who are here today. (Carl's mother is not insulted. That is a bullying of Ty's parents.) They've shown incredible courage as advocates against bullying in memory of the sons and the brother that they've lost. And so we're so proud of them and we're grateful to them for being here today. (It is terrible when children take their lives. It is also terrible that the results of progressive educational theories can cause such atmospheres and results.) (Applause.) (The sheeple react.)

(Bullies are not fully aware of the consequences of their actions and do not think about what they do. The bully in chief has to read from the teleprompter what he must say.)

(Source: http://media2.newsobserver.com/smedia/2011/03/10/22/obama-bullies0311%202_G102DASJD.1+obama-bullies0311.embedded.prod_affiliate.156.jpg)

No family should have to go through what these families have gone through. No child should feel that alone. We've got to make sure our young people know that if they're in trouble, there are caring adults who can help and young adults that can help; that even if they're having a tough time, they're going to get through it, and there's a whole world full of possibility waiting for them. (Again, it comes across as if Mr. Bully is paving the way for the nationalization of schools!) We also have to make sure we're doing everything we can so that no child is in that position in the first place. (We can surmise a cradle-to-the grave control over the (non) individual in Mr. Bully's bully New World.)

And this is a responsibility we all share -- a responsibility we have to teach all children the Golden Rule: We should treat others the way we want to be treated. (Children are not taught the Golden Rule because they have teachers. If the children had educators, they would be continuously educated in the Golden Rule. There is a difference! The Golden Rule maintains that. The Golden Rule in Islam maintains that also, but ... if it furthers the goals of Islam, the Golden Rule can be broken!)

The good news is, people are stepping up and accepting responsibility. (Hurrah for the Tea Party Movement!) They're refusing to turn a blind eye to this problem. (Is the blind eye, if the saying is appropriate, being turned to the problem, or is it being turned away from the problem?) The PTA is launching a new campaign to get resources and information into the hands of parents. MTV is leading a new coalition to fight bullying online, and they're launching a series of ads to talk about the damage that's done when kids are bullied for the color of their skin or their religion or being gay or just being who they are. Others are leading their own efforts here today. And across the country, parents and students and teachers at the local level are taking action as well. They're fighting not only to change rules and policies, but also to create a stronger sense of community and respect in their schools. (They are fighting? They should be engaged in standing up for individualism and independence, not for a sense of communal identity. The goal should not be respect alone. Responsibility, morals, and patriotism are equally essential.)

Joining this conference today is a young man I just had a chance to meet, Brandon Greene from Rhode Island. Brandon is 14 years old. Back in 6th grade, when he was just a kid, he did a class project on bullying. Now, two years later, it's a school-wide organization with 80 members. They do monthly surveys in their school to track bullying rates. And what they realized is that stopping bullying isn't just about preventing bad behavior -- it's also about working together and creating a positive atmosphere. (Oddly, that is what the Constitution for the United States of America is about: creating a positive atmosphere so that individual freedoms are guaranteed. Thus, a true solution is to follow the law of the Constitution!) So Brandon and his fellow committee members are now also doing activities like coat drives and community service at their school. And it's making a real difference. So we're very proud of Brandon and the great work he's doing. (Applause.) (The sheeple love it! The sheeple react accordingly!)

There are stories like this all across the country, where young people and their schools have refused to accept the status quo. (Stories are stories. Truth is something else! Bullies can tell lies to bully, Mr. Bully!) And I want you all to know that you have a partner in the White House (House of Bull). (Barack Hussein Obama loves partners!) As the former head of Chicago's public schools, nobody understands this issue better than my Education Secretary, Arne Duncan. (Arne Duncan was not too successful in advancing the renommée of Chicago's public schools! Maybe he did not understand the issue. Bullying in Chicago is a normal behavior.) He's going to be working on it, along with our Health Secretary, Kathleen Sebelius. (A likely story. It is about time they started working!) Arne is going to head up our administration's efforts, which began last year with a first-of-its-kind summit on bullying. (It was a you-will-attend summit!)

And we're also launching a new resource called stopbullying.gov, which has more information for parents and for teachers. (Government support! It appears that the foundation stones are being laid for the nationalization of schools!) And as part of our education reform efforts, we're encouraging schools to ask students themselves about school safety and how we can address bullying and other related problems -- because, as every parent knows, sometimes the best way to find out what's happening with our kids is to ask, even if you have to -- if it's in the case of Sasha, you have to keep on asking. (Maybe Sasha does not understand bullying! She observes it in her father and mother as normal behavior! They bully the law, the Constitution, political opponents, Jews wherever they are, Israel, and those who are just not of their opinion.) (Laughter.) (O how the sheeple love the quips!)

Now, as adults, we can lose sight of how hard it can be sometimes to be a kid. (Not you Mr. Bully. You play every day: basketball, golf, picking winners and losers in basketball games, brackets!) And it's easy for us to forget what it was like to be teased or bullied. But it's also easy to forget the natural compassion and the sense of decency that our children display each and every day -- when they're given a chance. (Just like Mr. and Mrs. Bully, progressives, Obots, leftists, and union thugs when they are given a chance!)

A couple other young people that I just had a chance to meet -- Sarah and Emily Buder, who are here from California. They're right here next to the (bogus) First Lady. And Sarah and Emily, they read a story about a girl named Olivia in a nearby town -- this is a girl they didn't know -- who had faced a lot of cruel taunting in school and online because she had had an epileptic seizure in class. So they decided to write Olivia a letter, and asked their friends to do the same. (Mr. and Mrs. Buder are to be highly commended for their action. However, the commendation coming from Bully Barack Hussein Obama is really the bully commending the Buders for their anti-bullying stance. What sarcasm! At the same time, sarcasm is a form of bullying and that is also a part of Bully Barack Hussein Obama's character.)

They figured they'd send Olivia about 50 letters. But in the months that followed, thousands and thousands of letters poured in from every corner of the country -- it really tapped into something. (Mr. Bully uses inadequate rhetoric! It did not tap into something! It locked on to respect and compassion!) A lot of the letters were from young people, and they wanted to wish Olivia well, and let her know that somebody out there was talking -- was thinking about her, and let her know that she wasn't alone. And because those children treated Olivia with that small measure of kindness, it helped Olivia see that there was light at the end of the tunnel.

The fact is, sometimes kids are going to make mistakes, sometimes they're going to make bad decisions. (Children do not really make bad decisions. Inept politicians make them!) That's part of growing up. (Inept politicians have to grow up also.) But it's our job to be there for them, to guide them, and to ensure that they can grow up in an environment that not only encourages their talents and intelligence, but also their sense of empathy and their regard for one another. (It is difficult not to surmise that another foundation stone for the nationalization of schools is being laid.)

And that's what ultimately this conference is all about. (About the future nationalization of schools?) And that's why all the issues that we're talking about really matter. And that's how we're going to prevent bullying and create an environment where every single one of our children can thrive. (By nationalization of schools?)

So thank you for the good work that you're already doing, and I'm sure you're going to come up with some terrific ideas during the course of this conference. Thank you very much. (Coming out of Mr. Bully's mouth, it sounds like a threat! (Applause.) (And the sheeple have been corralled.)

CLOSING REMARKS

In the above presentations Mr. Bully read 1,673 words from the teleprompter. Mrs. Bully read 601 words from the teleprompter. She was out-bullied by Mr. Bully!

The bottom line is that the responsibility for bullying and the actions against bullying lies with the parents and adults, whether or not they are Obots, union thugs, leftists, or progressives. The responsibility to take action against bullying does not lie with the government.²¹ A new kind of bullying is bearing false witness, something Barack Hussein Obama does every day with his al-taqiyya.²² As of this writing Barack Hussein Obama has officially lied 2006 times.²³

The Bully in chief is not the only (un) personality who bullies. "Vice President Joe Biden, speaking at a fundraiser in Philadelphia Friday, (March 18, 2011) compared Republicans in Congress to people who excuse rapists by blaming their victims.

The (bogus) vice president, known for speaking his mind and at times putting his foot in his mouth, said that Republicans who want to cut spending while at the same time cutting taxes for the wealthy are similar to rape apologists.

In setting up his comparison, the vice president explained to the audience that before the Violence Against Women Act that he championed was passed into law, 'there was this attitude in our society of blaming the victim,' according to a press pool account of the event.

'When a woman got raped, blame her because she was wearing a skirt too short, she looked the wrong way or she wasn't home in time to make the dinner,' Biden said.

'We've gotten by that,' he said. 'But it's amazing how these Republicans, the right wing of this party – whose philosophy threw us into this God-awful hole we're in, gave us the tremendous deficit we've inherited – that they're now using, now attempting to use, the very economic condition they have created to blame the victim – whether it's organized labor or ordinary middle-class working men and women. It's bizarre. It's bizarre.' "²⁴

Of course, Mr. Biden is bullying! Is the reason a train station is to be named after him because it is a bully station for the Amtrak train when it bullies full of energy down the track like Joe Biden is full of bullying energy when he is campaigning?²⁵

AFTER VIEW: The final word on bullying in this essay has two aspects.

1. Mr. and Mrs. Bully: You contend that bullying is something that is not to be accepted. You are correct! That is one reason why moral, upright, patriotic Americans do not accept you!

2. The conclusion by A. F. Branco:
